LOST

This morning
when I woke up,
it was all grey
and cold and miserable.

I said, "Grandad, I want to do absolutely nothing all day."

Grandad said,
"We've just got a few errands to run . . ."

and you never know, we might have some fun!"

First we went to the glasses shop.

I said, "Why do you need spectacles, Grandad?"

And he said, "Because I have some very important reading to do."

Next we went to the library.

I said, "What do you need from here, Grandad?"
And he said, "We have some very important instructions to find."

Then we went to the tool shop.

I said, "What are we doing here, Grandad?"

And he said, "We have something very important to make."

So we took home
our important equipment.

We were ready to begin!

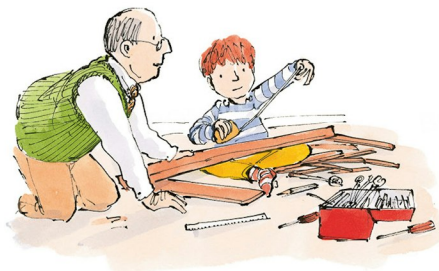

We plotted.

And twizzled and tapped.

And measured.

It took absolutely ages . . .

And bent.

But it was worth it!

I said, "Grandad, it's the best sledge ever!"

"And look at all that snow, Grandad!
Can we try it out now?"

So we set off.

And on the way we saw something.
I said, "Look, Granddad, there's a note!"

It said LOST: LOOPY
PLEASE HELP FIND HER.
REWARD: CAKE

We tried calling out for Loopy.
But there was no sign of her . . .

LOOOO OOOOPY!!

... so we carried on walking.

The wind picked up.

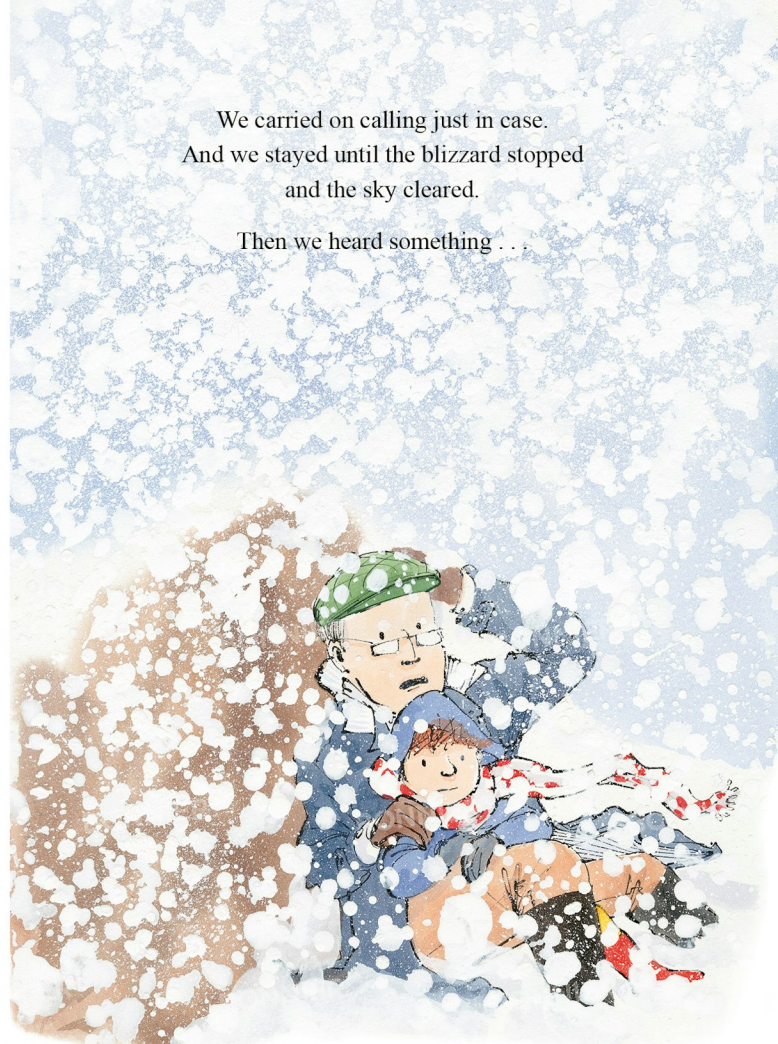

Snow was falling everywhere.

So we found shelter.

We carried on calling just in case.
And we stayed until the blizzard stopped and the sky cleared.

Then we heard something . . .

Wooooooooooooo!!

And Grandad said, "What was THAT?!"

It was Loopy with her new friends!

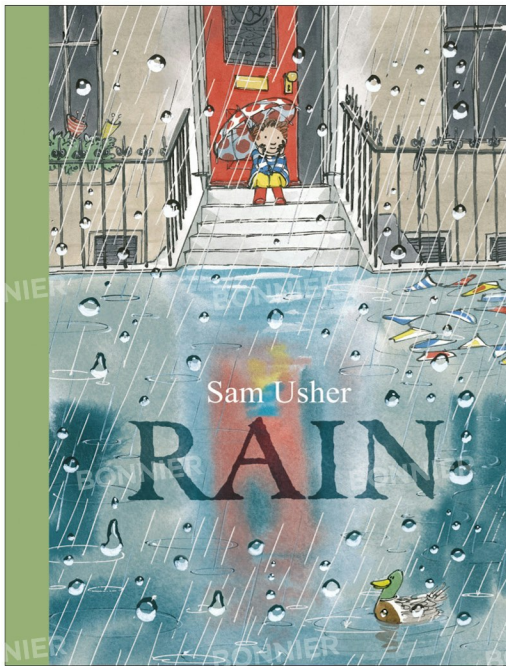

When we got back,
Grandad said,
“If you’re lost,
you never know
who you might turn to for help.”
And I agreed.

I hope we go out again tomorrow.
