SILLY SPORTING

STORIES

Three friends Danny, Kassim and Tanya were talking about the sad state of their local football club:

'I blame the manager; if we could sign better players, we'd be a great club,' Danny said.

Kassim disagreed. 'I blame the players; if they made more effort, I'm sure we would score more goals.'

Tanya then stopped them both. 'I blame my parents. If I had been born in a different town, I'd be supporting a decent team!'

A football hooligan appeared in court one day charged with disorderly conduct and assault. The arresting officer stated that the accused had thrown something into the river.

'What exactly did the accused throw?' asked the Judge.

'Stones, your honour.'

'Well, that's hardly an offence now is it?' the Judge replied.

'It was in this case, ma'am. Stones was the referee for the game last week.'

I was playing Football Manager when I was offered the Leeds job.

*I knew it was a poor squad
with no future, so I declined the offer immediately, then put the phone down and returned to Football Manager!*

*At a fierce derby between Blackburn
Rovers and Burnley last season, a spectator suddenly found herself in the thick of dozens of flying bottles and cans.*

'There's nothing to worry about,'
said the elderly chap standing next to her, 'it's like the bombs during the war. You won't get hit unless the bottle's got your name on it.'

'That's just what I'm worried about,' she replied,
'my name's Dr Pepper.'

Outside the stadium corridor, just before two fans got to the turnstiles, Priya suddenly stopped in her tracks.

'I wish I'd brought the bedside cabinet to the stadium,' she said.

Arun asked, 'Why would you want to bring a bedside cabinet to the football game?'

'Because I left the tickets on it!' she exclaimed.

Liverpool and Manchester City's managers meet up at the end of the game in the tunnel to reflect on the result:

'Our new winger cost fifty-five million. I call him our wonder player,' Guardiola says.

'Why's that?' asks a curious Jürgen Klopp.

'Every time he plays, I wonder why I bought him!'

A past footballer, a present footballer and a future footballer walked into a dressing room. It was tense.

A small boy is separated from his father at a Premier League match, so he goes up to a steward and says, 'Help please, I've lost my dad!'

'Oh yeah? What's he like?' the steward inquires.

'Pie and chips...'

Two elderly men were holding up the queue outside the entrance to the stand before the Millwall game, while one of them hunted for his ticket.

He looked in his coat pockets and his cardigan pockets and then his trouser pockets, all to no avail.

'Hang on a minute,' said the steward, 'what's that in your mouth?'

'It's the missing ticket!' said his friend.

As they moved inside, his mate said...

'Blimey, Gordon! You must be getting senile in your old age. Fancy having your ticket in your mouth and forgetting all about it!'

'I'm not that stupid,' said Gordon, 'I was just chewing last week's date off it!'

Two fans meet at their local chippy.

'Do you know, Diya, I've had a season ticket at Norwich for twenty-two seasons now and I've never seen my team lose.'

'What? No way! How is that possible?' Diya responds.

'The games are so awful, I leave at half-time!'

A fan was at the Man City match the other day and the fan sat closest to him called his team rubbish.

He would have retaliated but then realised he couldn't be bothered to walk halfway around the stadium to get to him.
