

WHOOOSH!

Sam Usher

COVER NOT
FINAL

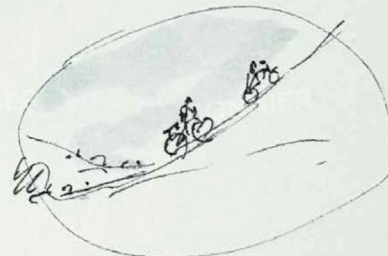

When I got to sleep
last night, I had the most wonderful dreams.

In the morning I said, “Grandad, please may
we have ice cream for breakfast?
He said, “What an excellent idea!”

And I said, “We can take our bikes,

cycle up the hill

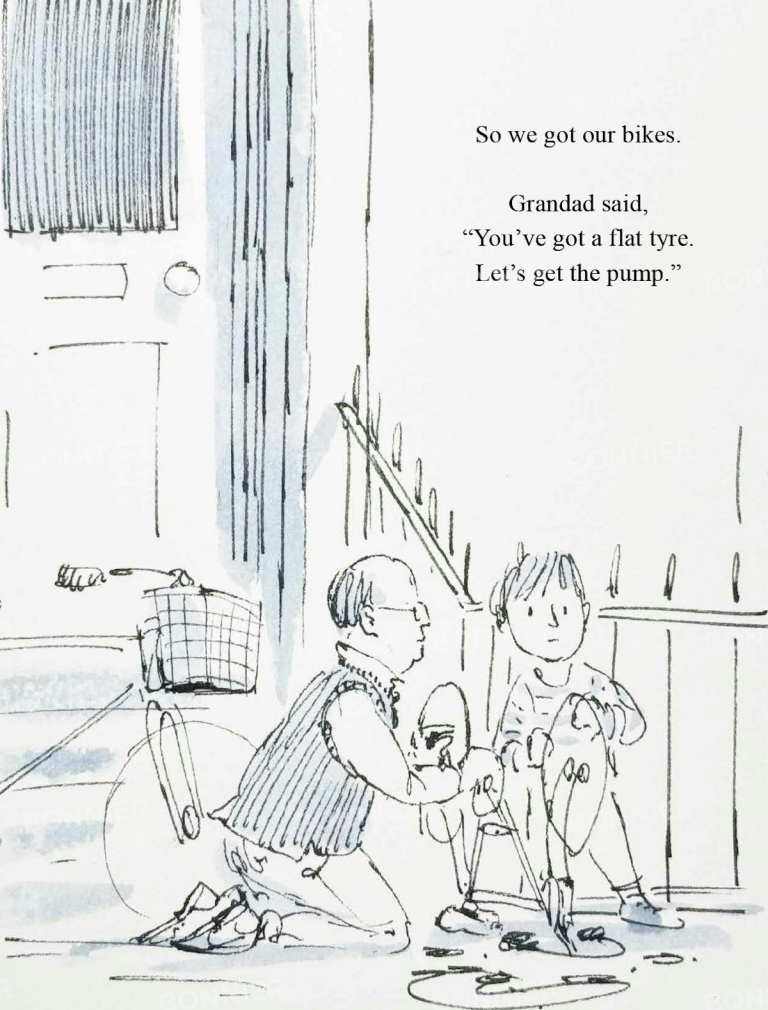

and have a tub each.”

So we got our bikes.

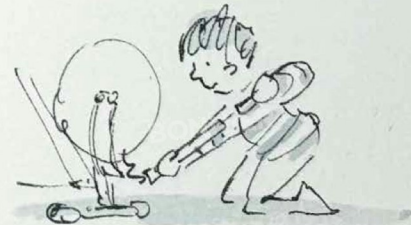

Grandad said,
“You’ve got a flat tyre.
Let’s get the pump.”

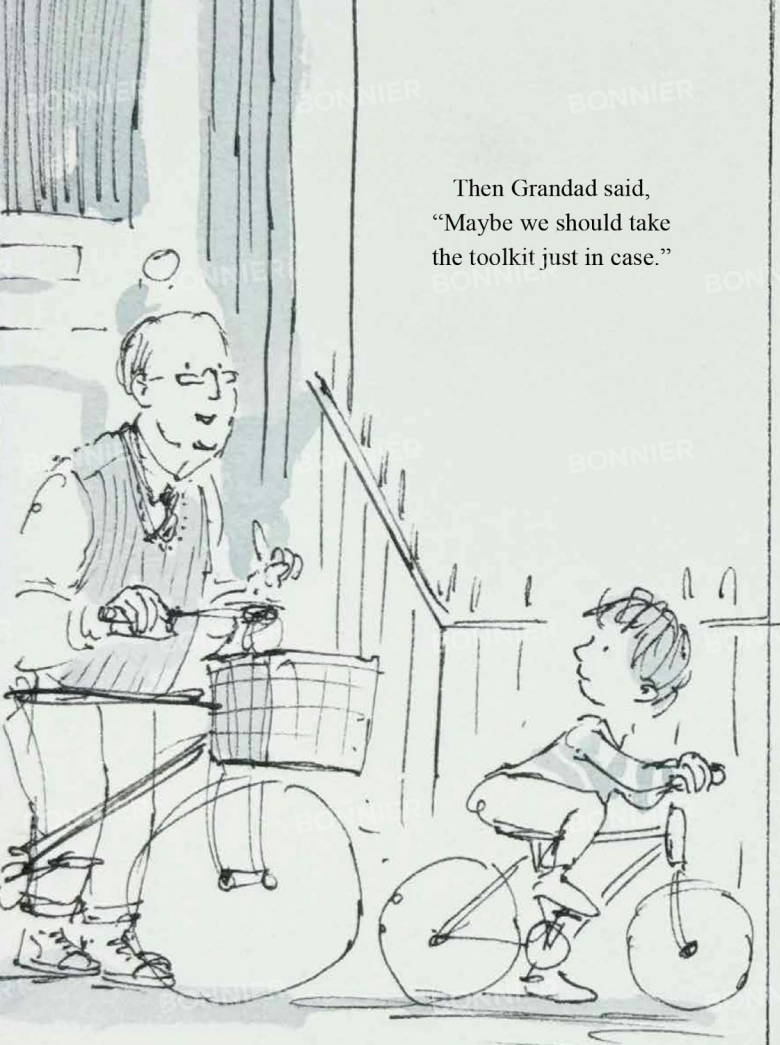

So I ran back indoors,

found the pump,

fixed the tyre, and we were ready to go.

Then Grandad said, “Maybe we should take
the toolkit just in case.”

So I ran indoors,

found the tools,
and we were ready to go.

But Grandad said,
“What happens if we get thirsty?”

So we packed some water bottles,
and a first aid kit in case we fell off,

and a map in case we got lost,
and some lights in case it got dark,

and an umbrella in case it rained,
and more baskets to put everything in.

We were ready, at last.

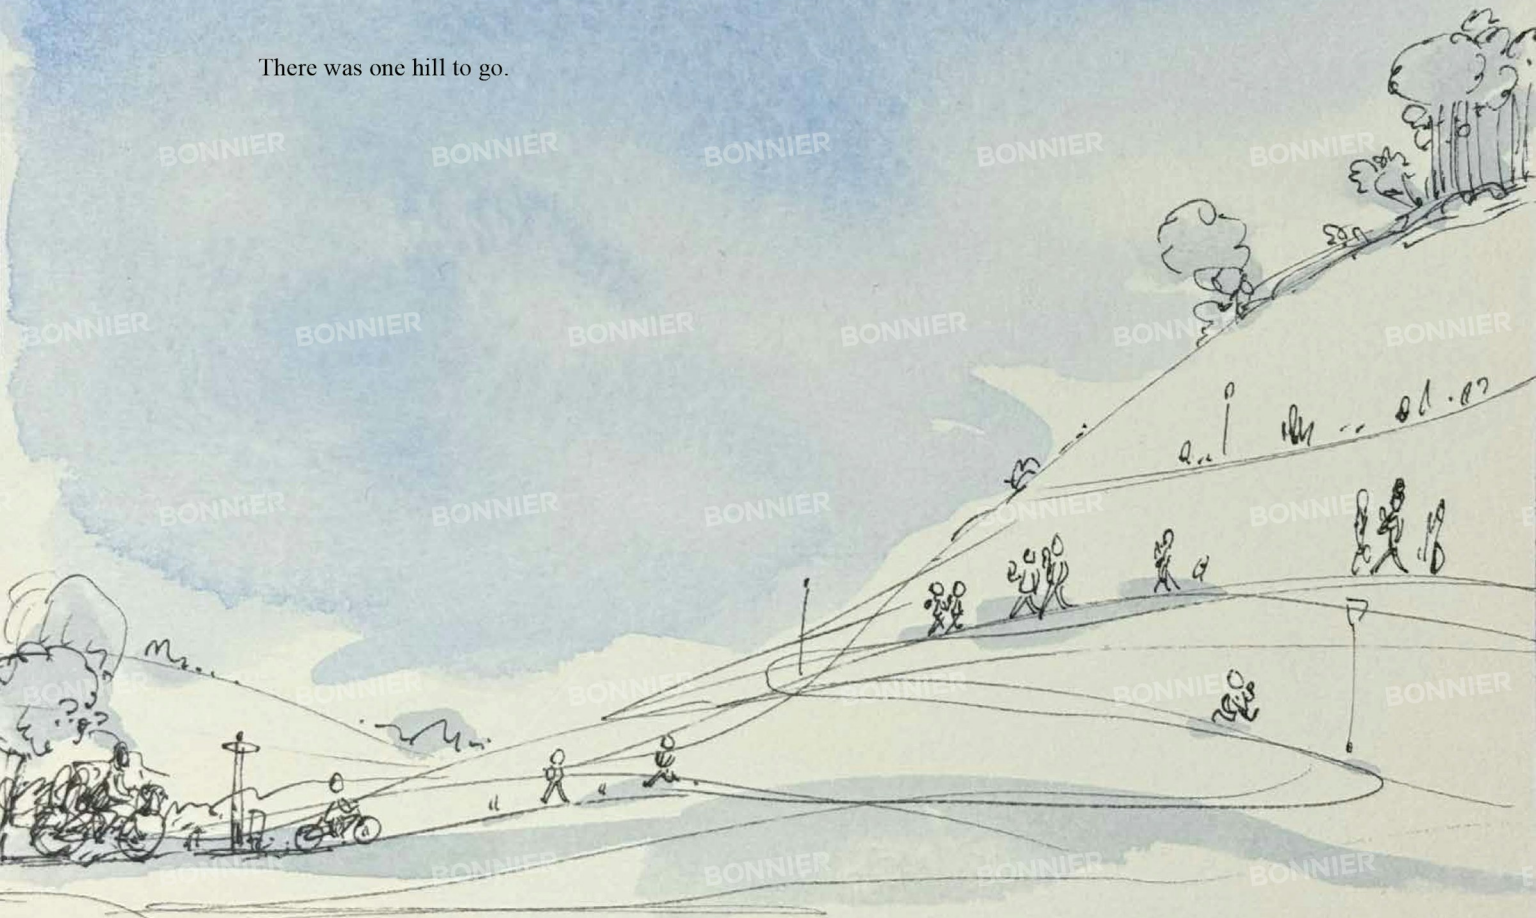

Grandad said, "I'm going to have raspberry and chocolate with a flake."

And I said, "I'm going to have four scoops of four different flavours, and crunchy sprinkles."

We cycled for ages.

There was one hill to go.

But when we arrived,
there was terrible news.

But then I had the most marvellous idea.

So we pumped and puffed,

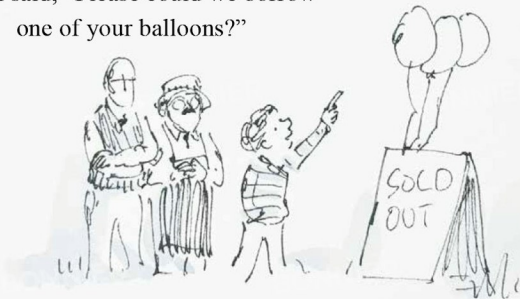

clicked and clanked,

Grandad said, "It's a long way..."

And I said, "Please could we borrow
one of your balloons?"

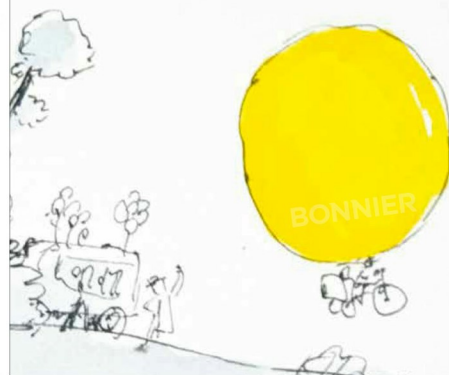

twizzled and tweaked.

We made our final adjustments.

And off we went!

And Grandad said,
“There it is!
Ice cream mountain!”

The wind was blowing sprinkles everywhere,
but we managed to land.

I collected strawberry and pistachio,

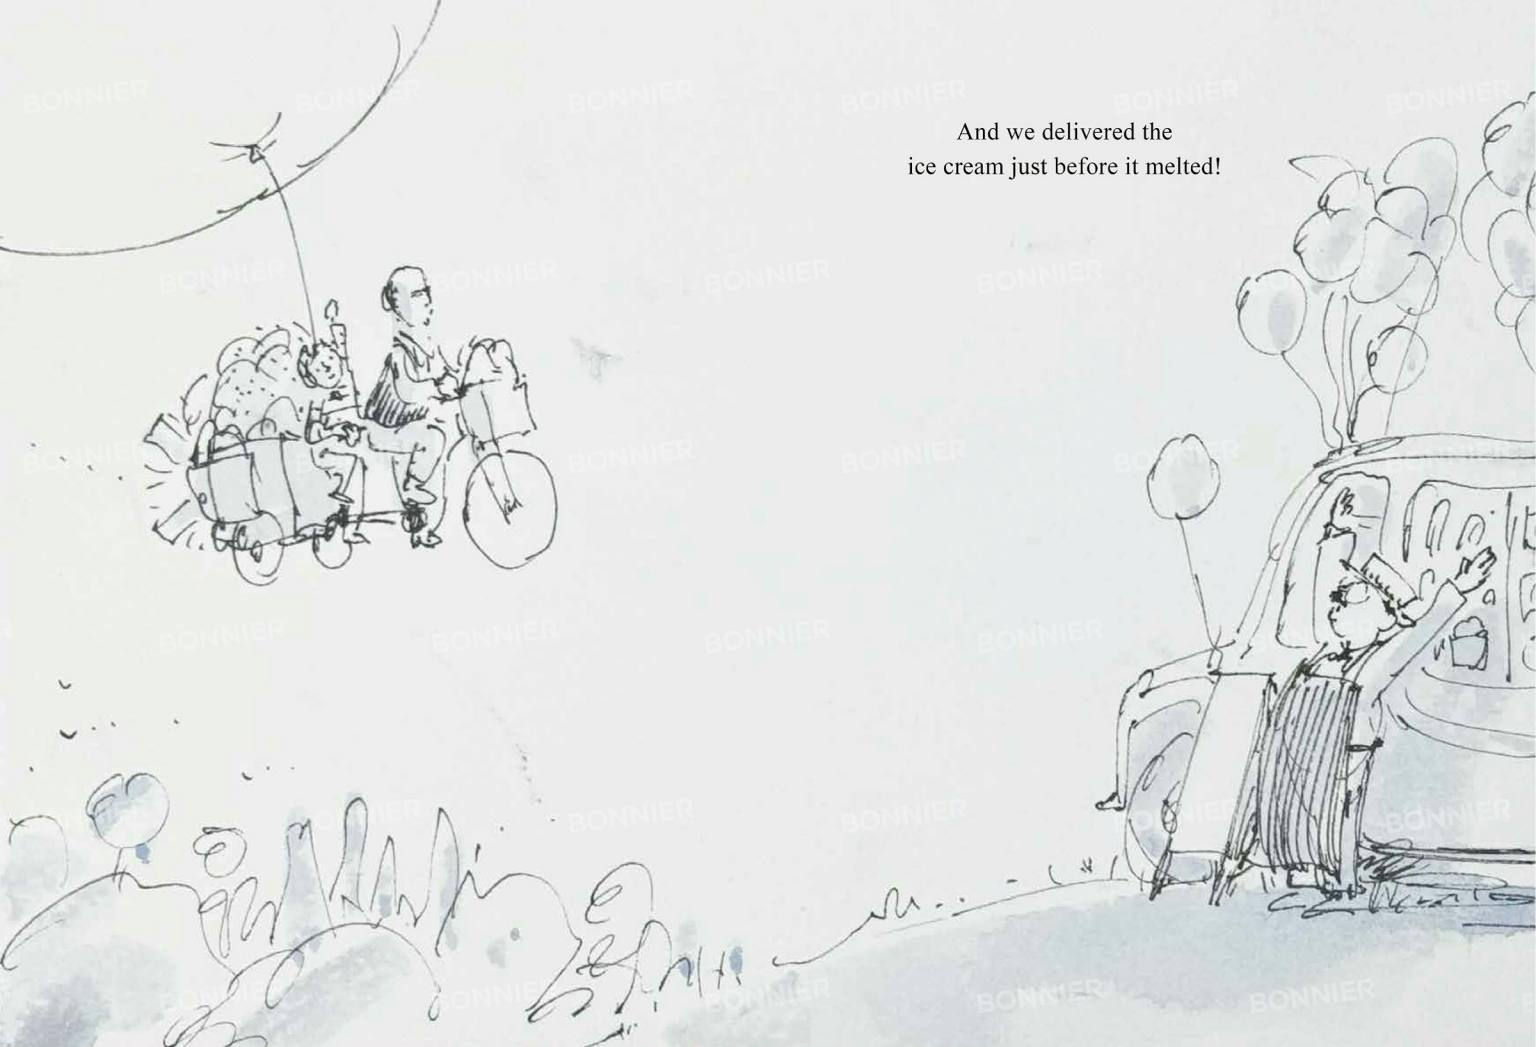

and Grandad collected chocolate and raspberry ripple.

We checked our cargo
and got ready to pedal
as hard as we could.

And we delivered the ice cream just before it melted!

Back at home, Grandad said,
“What an excellent adventure!
This is the most delicious
ice cream I’ve ever eaten.”

And I agreed.

I hope we go on another
bike ride tomorrow.
