

ADVENTURES with GRANDAD

FOREWORD

Sam Usher

It started in 2011 - I was trying to make my way as an illustrator, a couple of years out of art school. I remember taking the train into Paddington, looking out over the city and seeing hundreds of thousands of windows. I thought, behind one of those windows must be an empty room I could move into. But how to find it? Then I came across an advert – two step-daughters advertising on behalf of their step-father, James, 86. They were looking for someone to live with James, make sure he hadn't fallen over, cook a few times a week. take him for lunch and to art galleries and concerts - bring some youthful energy back into his life. In exchange they were offering a bedroom and studio space. Perfect.

I lived with James for 4 and a half years. Charles Lane became a source of inspiration and a home. Snow, based on my time there, published in 2014 and was followed by Rain. Sun and Storm to become a series, all written while living at James's. It's a thrill to see the books collected in a single volume like this to celebrate Snow's tenth anniversary.

I would like to thank: Jess and Todd Trethowan who first encouraged me to reply to James; Penny Holroyde, the agent who expertly steered the first 10 years of my career: Mike Jolley and Libby Hamilton who saw the potential in Snow; Gen Webster and Al Ritchie who have kept the series going with aplomb; and Louise and Jenny who took a shine to me and invited me to live with their step-father, 12 years ago.

Lastly, James Mattingly - this volume is dedicated to his memory - without his open-mindedness, sense of adventure, and wisdom, these books, and my whole career wouldn't exist. But please accept my profuse apologies for the terrible cooking.

From Sam

When I woke up this morning, it was snowing!

I couldn't wait to go to the park.

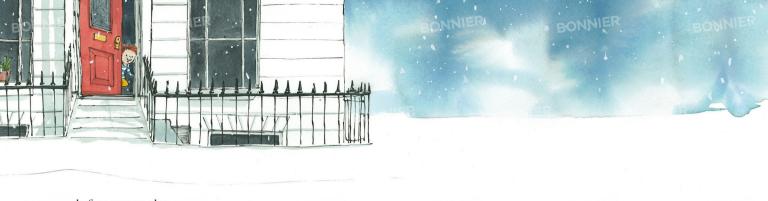

... before anyone else.

I said, "Don't forget the snow!"

And he said,

"Don't forget your scarf."

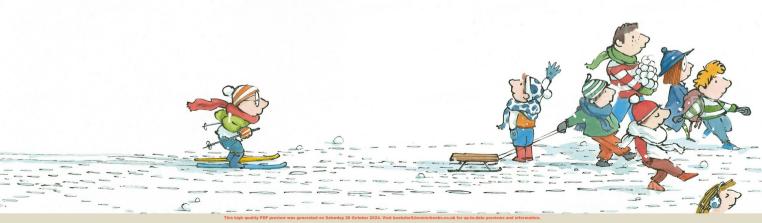

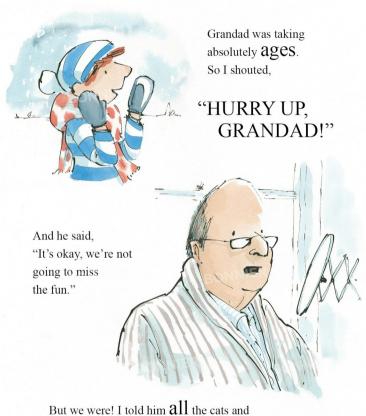

dogs were out there.

Grandad laughed and said the whole zoo was probably out there.

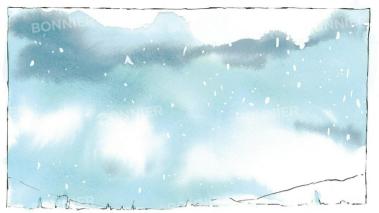

And then I saw something...

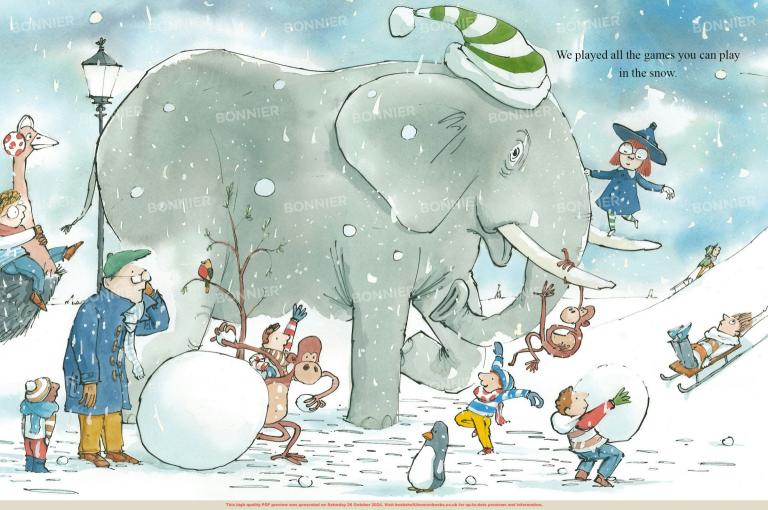

We were off to the park.

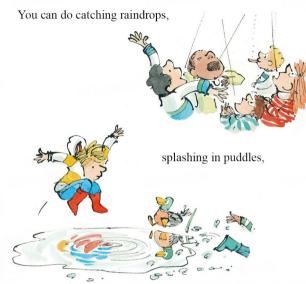

When I woke up this morning, it was raining. I couldn't wait to get outside.

Grandad said perhaps it was best to stay indoors, but I said I LIKE going out in the rain.

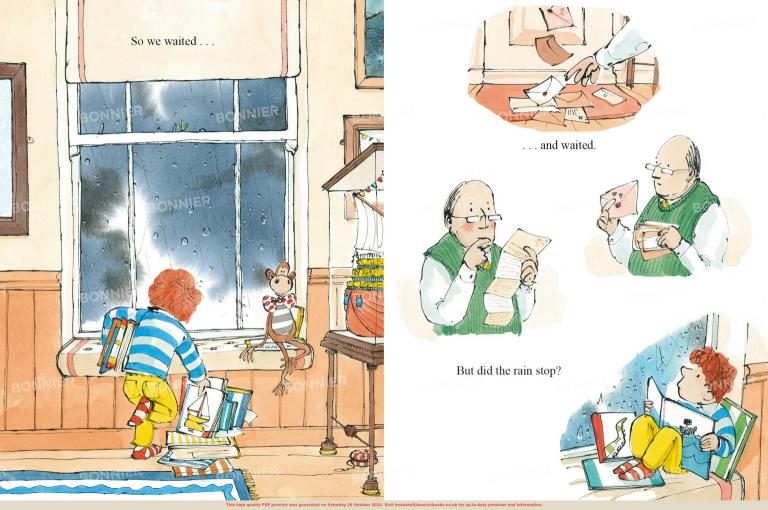

and looking at everything upside down.

But Grandad said,

So I said, "Grandad, I'd like to go on a voyage with sea monsters."

And Grandad said, "Let's just wait for the rain to stop."

So we waited some more.

And Grandad got on with his writing.

I said, "Grandad, I'd like to visit the floating city . . .

... with fancy dress acrobats and carnivals and musical boatmen!"

And Grandad said . . .

There wasn't a moment to lose.

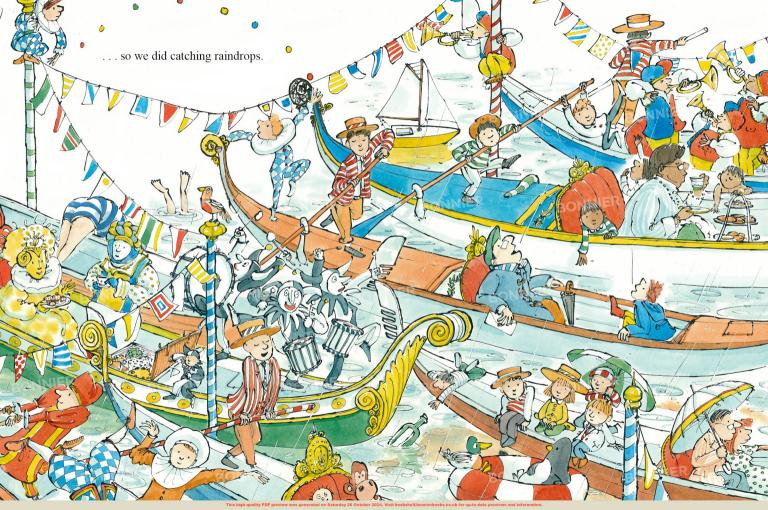

So we made our preparations

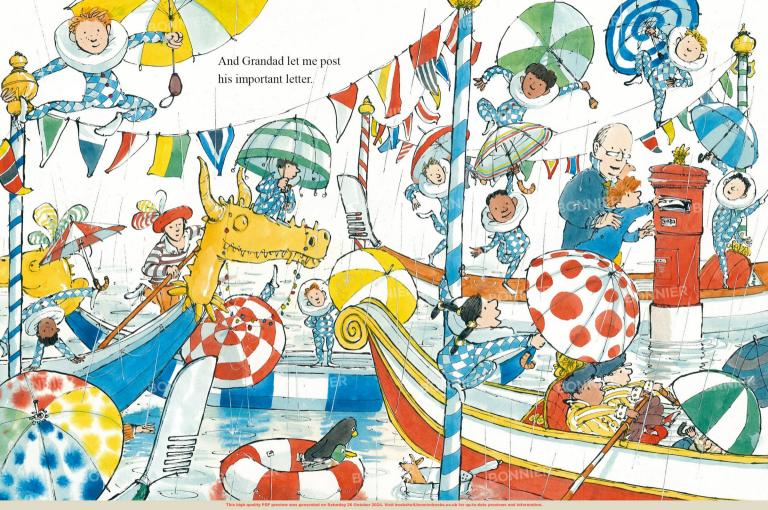

Back on dry land, with warm socks and hot chocolate, Grandad said, "You see, the very best things are always worth waiting for."

And I agreed.

I hope it rains again tomorrow.

When I woke up this morning, it was sunny.

It was the hottest day of the year.

I said, "It's hotter than broccoli soup,

hotter than the Atacama Desert,

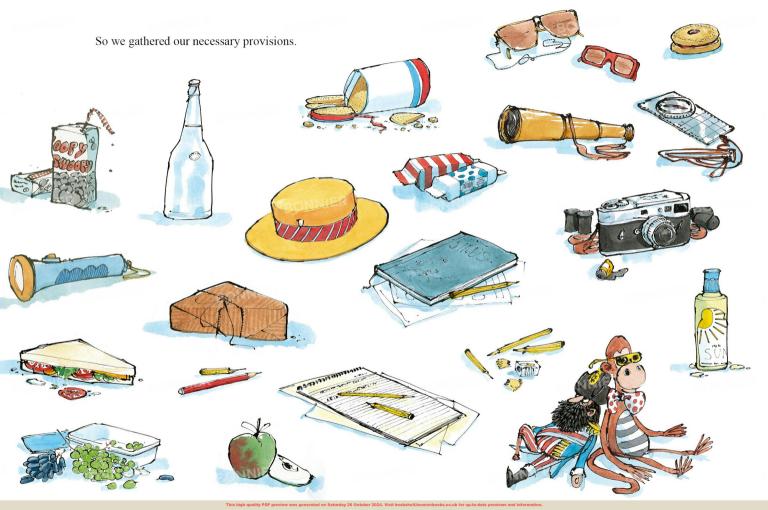

and hotter than the surface of the sun."

Grandad said, "It's the perfect day for an adventure."

I was lookout and Grandad was navigator.

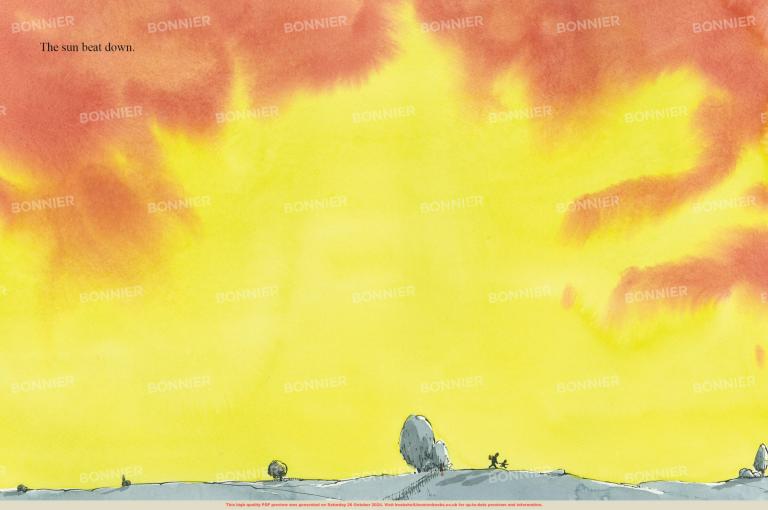

So Grandad navigated and I looked out.

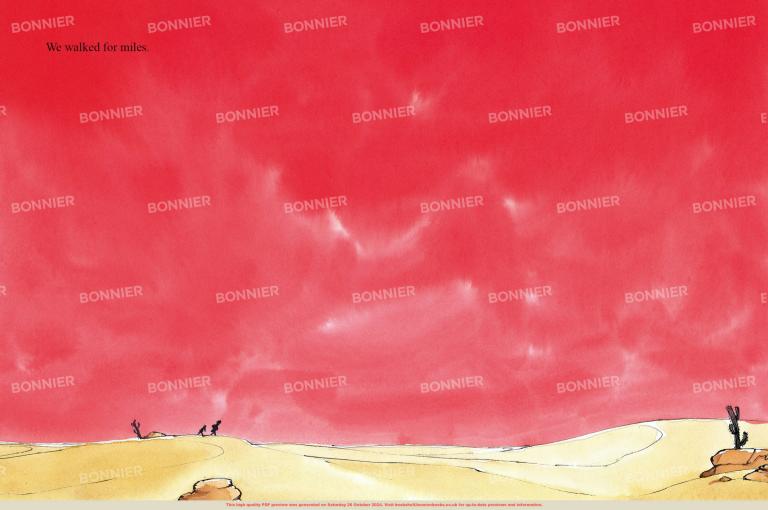

And I said, "What about this way, Grandad?"

Back at home, Grandad said, "If you keep looking, you never know what you might find."

And I agreed.

I hope it's sunny again tomorrow.

When I woke up this morning, the wind was rattling the windows.

I couldn't wait to go outside.

I said, "Grandad! We could do kicking up the leaves, swooping and flying

and leaning in the wind."

We looked for the kite in the cupboard.

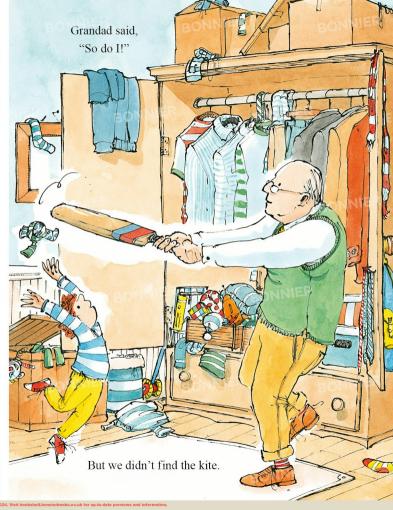

I said, "Grandad, it's your cricket bat!

I remember this!"

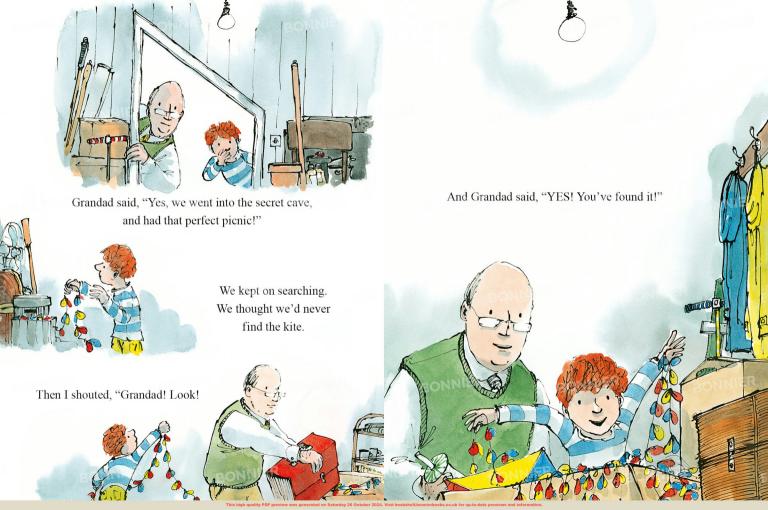

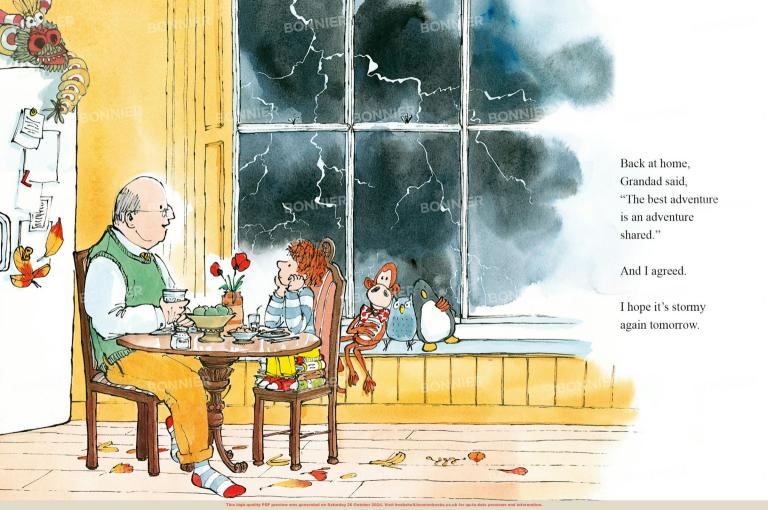

For James, 1926 — 2019.
