Getting to class

It's time for ballet class, and the dancers are hurrying in with their shoes and leotards ready! Some students walk or cycle to class, while others ride in cars with their parents. Did you know many professional dancers practice every day?
From the minute they step into the studio, the dancers are focused on learning new moves.

Can you find...?

Who is wearing a polka-dot dress?

Can you find this hat?

Can you find the little boy?

Can you see this dog?

How many trees can you see?

Can you find this umbrella?

Add a street light sticker.

Can you find this man's hat?

Can you add a cat sticker?

Can you put the airplane sticker in the sky?

Ballet dancers wear pointed shoes so that they can dance on the tops of their toes.

Warming Up

Before the real dancing, the ballet students must warm up. You can see them stretching at the barre, lifting their legs high and pointing their toes. The teacher leads them through exercises to prepare, ensuring every muscle is flexible and strong, ready for the leaps, turns, and tricky moves to come!

Can you find...?

Can you find the yellow tutu?

Can you add a bird sticker?

Plié and Pirouettes

Now it's time for pliés and pirouettes! A plié is when dancers bend their knees gracefully, and a pirouette is a spinning turn. Dancers practice these moves until they are perfect!

Their teacher watches closely, offering corrections and encouragement. Ballet requires incredible discipline, but the dancers make it look effortless.
