The Long Ship

Members of the crew load the ship with food, water, and other supplies for the vogage. The ship is long and narrow, made from oak planks that curve upward at each end. The planks are fitted together with iron nails, and any gaps are plugged with tar and animal hair. The ship is very shallow — the distance from the bottom to the gunwale is only about 6 ft (18 m). Along each side are 16 holes for the oars to slide through. The holes can be shut in rough weather to keep out the sea.
