Perspective

If you look at any object from different viewpoints, you will see that the parts that are closest to you look larger, and the parts furthest away from you look smaller. Drawing in perspective is a way of creating a feeling of space - of showing three dimensions on a flat surface.

It may help you with perspective if you imagine your figure (the horse) as a rectangular block like this.

The vanishing point: Find the place in a perspective drawing where parallel lines appear to meet. The position of this vanishing point depends on the viewer's eye level. Sometimes a line vanishing point gives you a better idea of distance.

Two-point perspective drawing: Two-point perspective means that the vanishing points are far from the viewer's eye level. The lines that are parallel in the object will converge towards the vanishing points.

Low eye level: This is the eye level of the viewer. The lines that are parallel in the object will converge towards the vanishing points.

Normal eye level: This is the eye level of the viewer. The lines that are parallel in the object will converge towards the vanishing points.

High eye level: This is the eye level of the viewer. The lines that are parallel in the object will converge towards the vanishing points.

Rats

Animals like rats make great cartoon characters. You can give them personalities and expressions, just as you can with your cartoon people.

Start by drawing the body as a simple shape. Then add the head, ears, and tail. Use simple shapes like circles and ovals to build up the body.

Sketch a rat's head. Use simple shapes like circles and ovals to build up the head. Then add the ears, eyes, and nose.

Add a tail to the rat. Use a simple shape like a long, thin oval to build up the tail. Then add the fur and the tip.

Bulldog

The bulldog is a classic cartoon character. Its face is perfect for a grumpy expression, which usually gives it a character all of its own.

Start by drawing the head as a simple shape. Then add the body, legs, and tail. Use simple shapes like circles and ovals to build up the body.

Figure work

Adding clothes to a figure can help to define the character. This figure is dressed as a Victorian maid.

Start by sketching these simple shapes for the figure.

Draw an oval for the head.

Indicate the joints with dots.

Draw tube shapes for the arms, using your construction lines as a guide.

Draw two shapes for the feet.

Sketch an oval for the head.

Add ovals for the body and hips.

Draw straight lines to connect the ovals and show the positions of the limbs.

Inside the hand shape, draw a circle and one finger going into the mouth.

Join the body and hips into one large oval.

Add a small circle for the position of the big toe. This will help you draw the shoes.

Make the legs into tube shapes.

Drawing hands

Follow these steps to help you draw the shape of a hand. As you get better you will be able to draw different hand gestures.

1. 2. 3. 4.

Two parallel lines show the soles of the shoes.

Try drawing these hand gestures.

Sketch in the hair and add the cap.

Draw the shape of the clothes going around the body.

Sketch in the dress using curved lines.

Add details such as cuffs, buttons and a collar.

The hem of the dress covers part of the feet.

Add lines to the apron and at the bottom of the dress to show folds in the material.

Finish the head by adding the hair and eyelashes. Shade above the eyes and inside the ear.

Add shading to areas like this where light wouldn't reach.

The head

The head is a difficult shape to draw. It includes some of the most expressive features of the body. Using construction lines helps to place the eyes, nose, ears and mouth accurately on the head.

Front view

Side view

Three-quarter view

When drawing the head from different angles, construction lines can help to keep the features in the correct positions.

When drawing the head from the front, use a circle to define the basic shape of the head. Then, use a series of construction lines to place the features accurately.

When drawing the head from the side, use a circle to define the basic shape of the head. Then, use a series of construction lines to place the features accurately.

When drawing the head from a three-quarter view, use a circle to define the basic shape of the head. Then, use a series of construction lines to place the features accurately.

The feet

Feet come in all shapes and sizes and can be drawn in many different poses. The construction lines for a simple side view usually start with a simple shape, then the toes are added and the ankle is positioned.

Side view

Top view

Bottom view

The shape of the foot can be broken down into simple geometric shapes.

Use these construction lines as a guide to draw the foot.

Balance and motion

Balance and motion are important aspects to consider in your drawing. Use basic construction lines to create a variety of poses. Then build up the drawing from there.

Walking

Running

Jumping

Use these construction lines as a guide to draw the figure.

Use these construction lines as a guide to draw the figure.

Use these construction lines as a guide to draw the figure.

Walking figure

A simple walking movement is a good starting point for drawing a figure in motion. In this case, the figure is viewed from the side, so remember to consider which parts of the body will be seen.

Head

Torso

Hips

Spine

Draw in the basic shapes for the head, torso and hips. Join these shapes with a line for the spine.

Add straight lines for the arms with small circles at the elbow joints.

Draw ovals to indicate the hands.

Draw a small circle in the middle of the hips. This indicates the top of each leg. Add straight lines for the legs with small circles for the knee joints.

Add in a basic triangular shape for each foot.

Using the construction lines as a guide, start to add the shape of the body.

Pay particular attention to the joints of each limb, drawing elbows and knees accordingly.

Start to add in the facial features.

Add in muscle structure.

Using the ovals as a guide, add detail to the hands.

Add muscles to the legs using the circles as a guide.

Add shoes.

Add shade to areas where light will not reach.

Complete the details of the facial features and hair.

Add clothing to the figure.

Add tone for definition.

Add socks.
