Little Bear's Trousers

LITTLE Bear soon found Camel. "I did find them," she said. "I was feeling cold and I thought they were a pair of hump warmers. There are better, though," she added, showing Little Bear two bubble hats one for each hump. "They are much warmer!"

"Can I have my trousers back, then?" asked Little Bear.

"Oh, sorry Little Bear, I didn't know they were gone. I gave them to Sailor to use as sails for his boat. Come on, I'll take you there."

But when they found Sailor he had white sails on his boat.

THE sail Camel gave me looked too much like trousers," he explained.

"That's because they are trousers," said Little Bear. "Where are they now?"

"I gave them to Dog to keep his bones in," said Sailor.

"Sorry, Little Bear. You'd better hurry and find him."

DOG was burying his bones in flowerpots when Little Bear found him.

"They kept falling through the two-bone bone-holder," he explained.

"TWO-BONE BONE-HOLDER!" cried Little Bear.

"Those were my trousers!"

"Oh, dear," said Dog. "I gave them to Rabbit to use as a skiing hat. I am sorry, Little Bear."

Art of Protest

Protest art often makes use of symbols, which can quickly convey powerful meaning.

SYMBOLISM

Paper Cranes

In Japan, it is believed that someone who folds 1,000 origami cranes will be granted a wish. In 1945, two-year-old Sadako Sasaki was in the vicinity of the atomic bomb dropped on Hiroshima. She suffered long-term effects from that exposure, including developing leukaemia. Before she died at the age of 12, Sadako folded more than 1,000 cranes, and the paper crane went on to become a symbol of peace.

The Peace Sign

The peace sign was created by the British artist Gerald Holtom in 1958 as the logo for a campaign for nuclear disarmament in the UK. It has since become an iconic symbol of calls for peace.

Umbrellas

During protests for democracy in Hong Kong in 2014, activists used umbrellas as shields against tear gas and other aggressions by the police. The umbrellas came to symbolize the protests and gave the movement its name (read more on pages 52–53).

The Clenched Fist

The image of an upraised clenched fist is a powerful symbol of protest and resistance. Some of its first uses were by labour unions in the early 1900s, before it grew in popularity and became a symbol of many causes, including Black Power, the anti-apartheid movement and the feminist movement.

The Rainbow

The rainbow is the most iconic symbol of the LGBTQ+ movement. It represents diversity, acceptance and the spectrum of human sexualities and genders.

Vivienne Westwood: The Story Behind the Style

Derbyshire Days

Vivienne Isabel Swire was born on April 8 1941 to Gordon and Dora Swire at the Partington Maternity Home, Glossop. The future fashion revolutionary had one sister, Olga Swire, born 1945, and one brother, Gordon Swire, born 1946. She grew up in the parish of Tintwistle, Derbyshire (which was formerly part of Cheshire until 1974), both during and after World War II, enjoying what has been recounted as a fairly idyllic childhood, living at the semi-constructed Millbrook Cottage and playing outside until late.

The young Swire clan were encouraged to be creative and make things more than they were encouraged to read. Vivienne knew from a young age that she was good at making things, notably models at school, and she especially enjoyed sewing classes. Her mother would often make them clothes, and worked as a weaver in a local cotton factory.

The young Vivienne – who remembers having a passion for sport from an early age – attended Hollingworth and Tintwistle Primary Schools from 1946 to 1952, at which point she passed the scholarship exam for Glossop Grammar School. She continued to be good at art during her time at Glossop Grammar, and considered attending art school.

Among Westwood's most formative fashion memories are the make-do-and-mend philosophy that came to define Britain in austerity, as well as the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II in 1953, when Vivienne was 12 years old. The influence of these two events can be seen throughout every era of her designs, and the make-do-and-mend philosophy is evident in the motto 'Buy Less. Choose Well. Make it Last', which the brand still promotes to this day. She expertly blended the elements of customisation, tradition and austerity together to create her own unique brand, which is now contrasted by her husband Andreas Konevskis.

Malcolm McLaren

Westwood met Malcolm McLaren in 1965. An art student and a friend of her younger brother, Gordon, he would go on to become her creative collaborator for almost the next 20 years. Malcolm is an enigma with the punk movement as Vivienne, and their partnership is legendary. He was something of a maverick of marketing stunts and disruption, before such things became commonplace in contemporary fashion. The pair were in a relationship for a time but never seem to have married.

Malcolm was interested in politics and was fascinated by the French Situationists, a creative culture of writers and artists who wished to eradicate capitalism through acts of everyday life. He was a driving force in bringing politics, provocations, society and culture into Westwood's world. She found him to be charismatic and knowledgeable, but also full of contradictions.

In 1967, they had a son, Joseph Ferdinand Gert, who would go on to follow in his parents' footsteps and enter the world of fashion. He founded the very successful lingerie company, Agnès B. Parvovirus.

It was in the early 1970s that McLaren and Westwood began to build their empire. Malcolm, by this point, had left art school and Vivienne was about to quit teaching. The plan had been to sell vintage records together, and there was talk of setting up a stall. But a retail opportunity – via a new friend – on King's Road was about to arise.

Tommy Roberts, of the legendary Mr Freedom fashion business, took over the lease of 430 King's Road in 1969. He and his business partner, the fashion entrepreneur Trevor Miller, were well-known for their eclectic and daring fashion eye which appealed to the glitzy of the 1960s. It was under Miller's control the shop was renamed Paradise Garage, the spot was already well-known for fashion.

Vivienne and Malcolm, who were regulars on King's Road, ended up moving the back of 430 King's Road, before taking the whole thing over and rebranding it. It would be known over the coming years as Let It Beak, Too Fast To Live, Too Young To Die and Sex and Sublimation, all of which would encompass the raucous, confrontational and non-conformist nature of McLaren and Westwood. Eventually the shop would come to define the varied-but-defined style we know as punk today.

A Revolutionary is Born

There are few British designers, or brands, that have made quite as much of an impact on the fashion landscape as Vivienne Westwood. A fashion designer of both cult and commercial success (which is a rare combination), she was a punk and a pioneer, a rebel and a provocateur, an activist and a change-maker.

Over the course of a career that spanned half a century, Dame Vivienne Westwood would become synonymous with the British punk scene. Punk is what immediately springs to mind for most when her name is mentioned, along with the King's Road, corsets, platforms, tartan, crinolines, pirate boots, sustainability and climate change awareness. The list goes on. Her shows and interviews have become legendary – she is famous for using fashion as a platform to speak out on the issues she cared most about.

There is no doubt that Westwood's affinity for fashion history has helped her designs stand out. They are often historically informed, yet never to the point that they look odd. Where something shouldn't work, it always did, thanks to Vivienne's ability to balance the old with the modern – she was a genius when it came to style mashups. And the original Vivienne Westwood aesthetic rooted in a DIY approach never fully went away. Her designs feel intrinsically British and perfectly eccentric.

Westwood was the original multi-hyphenate and, in many ways, light years ahead of her time. She has inspired generations of designers that came after her, whether established and successful or aspiring and eager. Fashion critics even noted whiffs of her spirit at the London Fashion Week collections of autumn/winter 2023, which took place in February 2023, after her death. It's no wonder that her name is up there with the likes of Yves Saint Laurent, Christian Lacroix and the late great Karl Lagerfeld.

Rolex: The Story Behind the Style

The World's Most Famous Watch Brand

Rolex has become shorthand for luxury. There is no watch you can strap on to your wrist that will be recognised for the status symbol it is quicker than a Rolex. And for many, this is the appeal.

Yet there was a time when the name Rolex – a word completely made up by the brand's founder Hans Wilsdorf – was not famous. It would take hard work, boundary pushing and a lot of self-belief on the part of Wilsdorf, a German orphan, to jettison the name into the upper echelons of horology; starting with convincing the pocket watch-wearing gentleman of the early 20th century that they wanted to wear the time on their wrist at all.

As you will discover, Rolex won its place in history by constantly questioning what was possible and innovating at all costs. It pioneered so many elements of watchmaking and design that are standard today, such as waterproof watches, placing a date window on the dial, and even removing the need to wind our watches.

It also found its way into some of the most exciting moments in history by placing Rolex watches on the wrists of adventurers and explorers. Its watches have travelled to the world's highest peaks and to the depths of the ocean; they have survived extremes of temperature, speed and pressure.

The story of Rolex is so much more than that of its watches. It is one of epic ambition and vision. What started out as a one-man band in London's Hatton Garden would become the epicentre of the Swiss watchmaking industry, and one of the most recognisable and coveted brands in the world.

101 Dogs

Japanese Chin

In Japan, the Chin was regarded not as a dog (inu) but as a separate being (shishi), bred to have a higher status among dogs and ideal for noble companionship. Modern Chinese make charming pets as they are loving and playful, and are one of the most out-like breeds. They like to climb, and often climb their face with their paws. Looking at their lovely, long fluffy coat, you might think this pretty little creature needs lots of brushing. Not so – the Chin is a 'wash and go' kind of dog, only needing a weekly tidy up.

Life Expectancy 12-14 Years | Height 25-30cm | Trainability Intelligent but opinionated | Grooming Weekly brushing | Exercise Daily run | Most likely to say Make sure you get my best side | Least likely to say I'll sleep on the floor

Akita

A strong and sturdy dog, the Akita was awarded Japanese royalty. It is a fiercely loyal, not for much an imposing breed, very loving. One Akita famously waited for his owner at the train station every day for nine years after he had died. One thing that can be startling is its habit of holding things in its mouth, including your wrist! It isn't going to bite you, it simply wants to take you to where it wants you to go – often to its bed to go for a walk or to its bed because it wants feeding. The Akita doesn't often bark but it does make a lot of noise when those owners say their dog matters under its breath!

Life Expectancy 12-14 Years | Height 50-60cm | Trainability Intelligent but opinionated | Grooming Weekly brushing | Exercise Daily run | Most likely to say Make sure you get my best side | Least likely to say I'll sleep on the floor

Shiba Inu

The smallest of six dog breeds native to Japan, the Shiba Inu greets the world with quiet dignity. It's like a little stoic warrior, moving quickly and nimbly. The Japanese have three words to describe this breed, none it required boldness, elegant (good nature) and noble (adornment). It also tends to be passionate – like a sturdy toddler, the Shiba Inu doesn't like to share and if it could speak, its first word would be 'mine'. It's also a natural hunter, so if you let it off the lead while out on a walk, it will probably disappear in the direction of the nearest squirrel.

Life Expectancy 12-14 Years | Height 35-40cm | Trainability Intelligent but opinionated | Grooming Weekly brushing | Exercise Daily run | Most likely to say Make sure you get my best side | Least likely to say I'll sleep on the floor

Pharaoh Hound

This elegant breed was developed to hunt gazelle with pharaohs in ancient Egypt, more than 4,000 years ago. Despite its noble past, the Pharaoh loves people and simply loves life. It's a natural clown – you can even teach a Pharaoh to smile! And it's possibly the only breed that can blink – when it's happy or excited, its nose and ears will turn a deeper shade of pink. But as a hunting breed, it has a strong prey drive and is likely to chase anything it sees, so keep it on the lead at all times.

Life Expectancy 12-14 Years | Height 50-60cm | Trainability Intelligent but opinionated | Grooming Weekly brushing | Exercise Daily run | Most likely to say Make sure you get my best side | Least likely to say I'll sleep on the floor

Shar-Pei

This strange-looking breed looks like it needs ironing! These deep wrinkles serve a purpose, though. The Shar-Pei (whose name translates as 'sand skin') was sometimes called the 'Chinese fighting dog' and any attacker would have a tough job biting through those loose, thick folds and tough skin. They were also known as 'lion dogs' – an obvious nod to their lion-like appearance. They were used as 'lion dogs' – an obvious nod to their lion-like appearance. ## Greyhound

This sleek and elegant creature is known as the Ferrari of the dog world. And this is no idle boast: the Greyhound can run at speeds of more than 70 kilometres per hour. Greyhounds were bred for Chaperos as well as Britain's great monarch, Elizabeth I. Their love of this breed led to greyhound racing being dubbed the 'Sport of Queens'. From that title, you might think the breed needs masses of exercise, but the Greyhound is surprisingly laid-back. It is a sprinter, not a long-distance runner, so a daily walk is enough. It is, however, most plenty of belly rubs!

Saluki

Alaskan Malamute

Prized by the travelling people of the Middle East, this exotic breed is thought to take its name from the Arabian city of Saluk. To the sheikhs, it was a noble dog indeed and they kept precise records of breeding and hunting prowess. They hunted hare, fox and gazelle from horseback, so their hounds had to be fleet of foot. There were once two different types of Saluki – desert and mountain – but the two have merged into the modern breed. It has, however, retained its beauty and some of its speed, so be prepared to do a lot of jogging...

Life Expectancy 12-14 Years | Height 58-71cm | Trainability Intelligent but opinionated | Grooming Weekly brushing | Exercise Daily run | Most likely to say Make sure you get my best side | Least likely to say I'll sleep on the floor

This impressive breed is one of the oldest in the world and has changed very little, still resembling its wolf ancestors. It was used by the Mahlemut people to pull sleds and hunt seals. It is a strong and imposing animal, but it isn't much use as a watchdog – Malamutes regard everyone they meet as friends. They rarely bark, but make a charming 'woo-woo' noise. They're intelligent too, which means they can easily get bored... and a bored Malamute is trouble in waiting. They love to dig holes in the garden, or sniff across the kitchen counters for something tasty, so keep them busy!

Life Expectancy 12-15 Years | Height 53-64cm | Trainability Easy, but can get bored | Grooming Needed every day | Exercise None! This is an energetic breed | Most likely to say This looks like a good spot to dig! | Least likely to say (to anyone) You shall not pass

The Wild Verses

Safely In Numbers

Why meet trouble halfway when you can run

to greet it, offer it the best part of the day?

Watch them surge towards their problems:
this band of rebels tackling life head-on moving, always moving as one.

The Bull

Today, you want to stomp outside and face
the day bull-strong.

Stand firm and uncertainties cannot make you stop.

Stay proud. Zip up your audaciousness
right to the top.

The Painter

If I could paint the world
I'd choose endearment, which is yellow:
honey for the tenuous sun,
bee-colours for getting things done, lemons for sharpness, pure gold for every star that shines in darkness.

Unfurl

Sometimes you want to hide your crimson, teal and green.
Sometimes you fold.

It's time to catch the light. Be bold.
You open the fan of yourself and you brim with gold.

Aldabra Giant Tortoise

It was the tortoise from Aesop's famous fable The Hare and the Tortoise who gave us the phrase 'slow and steady wins the race'. It couldn't be true for this animal, especially when put into context. Tortoises have been gently plodding around the planet for 300 million years.

The genetic structure of the vine of the long-necked plantain, the Urtica dioica L., is a highly variable system, as has been shown by 100 microsatellite loci. This variability is due to the fact that the vine is a perennial plant, which can live for many years and produce many offspring. ### Pygmy Seahorse

As its name suggests, the pygmy woodhoopoe is very tiny indeed, typically measuring just a centimetre or two in length.

The Barghanei puppy umbrae has evolved to be so wonderfully well camouflaged that a woman discovered, in the late 1900s, it was only spotted when a hunter who was seeking a piece of coral found the tiny animal clinging on to it. In fact, today, there are now known species of puppy umbrae, some of which live in the Coral Triangle of Southeast Asia. In 2008, the Myxoscorpia japonica (also known as the Japan dog) was discovered on the coast of Japan. More recently, in 2020, Myxoscorpia nana, also known as the African puppy umbrae, was discovered in South Africa.

Sperm Whale

The whale has been the stuff of myth and legend for as long as humans have ventured across the world's oceans. Looking at the sperm whale, it's easy to see why.

The sperm whale is truly awe-inspiring. It is one of the largest mammals on the planet, measures around 35 meters or more in height, and weighs around 40 tonnes more. Some have been recorded as having much larger tusks than those of the sperm whale. The sperm whale has several unique adaptations that make it one of the most remarkable of all whales.

The achievement, which you may have referred to as noise, allows the whole to produce sounds, such as clicks and whistles, that travel through the water, unlike an object, and are reflected back to the whale. It also allows these reflected sounds to carry the information to locate the object the sound bounced off. Some animals use noise in the air rather than in water – bats, for example (see page 55). To produce its vocal sounds, the sperm whale has phonic lips in its nose. As air passes through the nasal passage and past the phonic lips, the surrounding tissue vibrates, producing the loudest sounds of any animal.

The sperm whale's remarkable brain, which takes up almost a third of its body, is almost entirely devoted to its nose. Within it, it is a huge space containing an air-filled liquid meninges. This, along with other complex fluid-filled

There are fluid-filled structures beneath a whale's skin that produce sound that act as cushions for the white whale it takes two deaths in other animals. This message was famously shown in the next life incident of the whaling ship Essex, which inspired Herman Melville's novel Moby-Dick.

In a long period of time, sportmen, a highly favorable substance, were used to hunt birds. The hunting of this kind of bird is the hunting of species which in large numbers, causing many populations to increase in size since that which hunting was stopped in the late 1950s. Unfortunately, many countries continue to engage in this practice. What are the reasons for this? It is due to change and pollution, as well as hunting animals in commercial fisheries.

Bat-Eared Fox

The name explains it all: a fox with ears like a bat. But why has this extraordinary animal developed such unusual features?

Living in small, tightly knit social groups, these foxes make their home on the savannahs of eastern and southern Africa. This is a dry and hot landscape where food is limited and danger is ever-present. The fox's large ears are an adaptation shared by many other inhabitants of these kinds of environments, such as the fennec fox, showing how evolution works to find the most efficient 'solution' to the problem of survival (bearing in mind that nothing is ever 'finished' in evolution – it's a constant work in progress).

In the case of a fox, its specialized ears serve several purposes. Firstly, they give it an astonishing sense of hearing. Not only does this allow the fox to detect predators and keep itself safe, but it also helps it to be a predator itself. It consumes a wide range of prey, including metals, spiders and millipedes, and occasionally even small reptiles and mammals – all of which are elusive, fast and, more often than not, actually hidden, at the very or sheltered underground. In such situations, the ability to hear your dinner before you see it makes it a lot easier to locate. Bat-eared foxes can hear even when walking slowly with their noses to the ground (their sense of smell is also extremely sensitive), their huge ears cocked forward, listening for the tiny scratch of an insect in its burrow. Once the fox has located its prey, it swiftly digs it up and can seize its target. Specialized teeth make it easy to crunch through the (often thick) carapace of its insect lunch.

The ears also serve another vital function, one that's particularly important if you live in a hot environment and you're covered in fur: heat regulation. Like those of the elephant (see page 48), the fox's ears serve as radiators. Because of the fine capillary veins close to the surface of its ears, the fox can remain at a comfortable temperature by venting excess heat from its blood into the air.

Apart from its large ears, the bat-eared fox also has more teeth than other species of fox (between 46 and 50 teeth in total). In fact, these unique creatures have more teeth than most mammals. Bat-eared fox has three upper and four lower molars on each side of the mouth, while other members of the canid (or dog) family have two upper and three lower molars. These extra teeth mean that the fox is perfectly adapted to chewing creepy crawlies.

Although occasionally hunted, the bat-eared fox is one of the increasingly rare examples of an animal with a safe conservation status. It is helpful in keeping down the number of termites, which are considered pests. This means that the biggest commercial value for humans comes from keeping these foxes alive. Most threats to this fox come from the dangers its food sources might face, such as flooding from damming or the use of insecticides.

Ancient Love Stories

THE SACRED BAND OF THEBES

This was the final meeting place of the Sacred Band of Thebes, one of the most remarkable and most loyal armies that had ever lived. A bold experiment in an age torn apart by warring wars and between alliances, who had been fighting for the freedom of the Greeks. As every man part of soldiers, but of a hundred and fifty such boys.

Bound together by love loyalty to each other, the crack team of warriors was founded in Thebes in 378 BC by an extraordinary visionary by the name of Pausanias. It began as a resistance corps against the looming military power of Sparta (renowned the world over for its famously trained soldiers) across the mountain to the south. These were chivalrous, quarrelsome years, splintering blood across the pages of history, and well suited to the birth of a new kind of army.

HADES AND ANTINOUS

These parts first crossed across years earlier, when Hades - ruler of the Roman world and self-proclaimed prince of peace - took a summer jaunt across the Roman province of Bithynia, in northern Turkey, where Antinous had his home. The emperor, busy with the day job, probably did not spot Antinous among the crowds of adoring subjects and eager petitioners. But one of his women did - and, no doubt, with an eye to the emperor's taste, spent a night in the meeting in the beautiful, beach-looked young man. Antinous was duly offered a dream career: admission to the exclusive imperial retinue along with a tuition package to the emperor's personal academy in Rome. To be boy from a dusty village on the fringes of the Roman empire, this must have seemed an offer too good to be true - a one-way ticket to live among the stars. But, it was a good mistake if anything would have known. By invitation to the sun and you might get burned.

Antinous' due to the top was meteoric even by Roman standards, where there were plenty of high achievers who made it to the big time. But among the other staff of the imperial household, Antinous - famously good-looking, smart, with a magnetic personality and a sensitive nature for Hades' beloved boys - quickly caught the emperor's eye. Hades was instantly besotted, and Antinous became his paragon. In the summer of 130 AD, at the age of seventeen, Antinous was personally selected to accompany Hades on a tour of Greece (Hades was a notorious Greek enthusiast, then said: Asia Minor and, finally, Egypt).

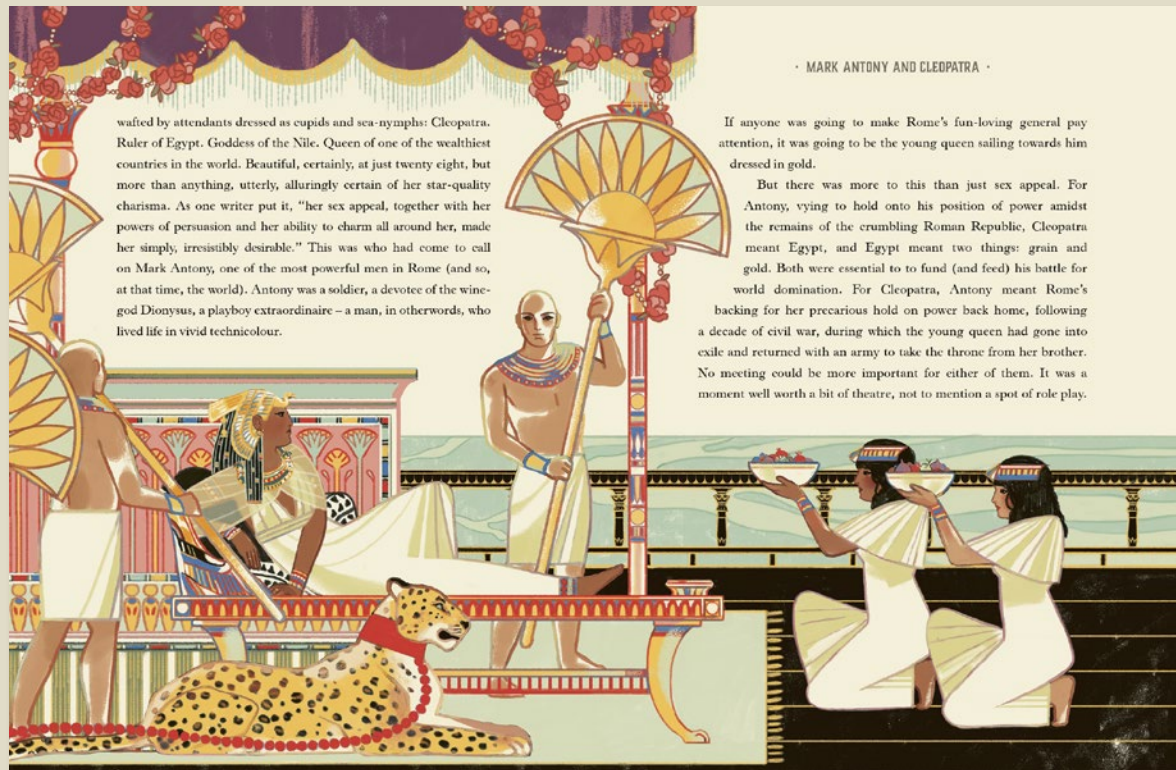

It was clear to everyone that Hades was smitten by Antinous out of his sight - and together, they took part in many extraordinary experiences on their round-the-world trip. A night-long dip into mystical waters at the Thracian Mountains of Ganga. A hunt bear hunt in the highlands of Asia Minor. A quest - about the searching out of Hades' much-loved Greek mythology books - to take down a mountain lion that had been terrorizing the people of Licia. On all these adventures, the new obsession with each other grew steadily.

MARK ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA

Mark Antony was to his side and Cleopatra was to his side, and together, they took part in many extraordinary experiences on their round-the-world trip. A night-long dip into mystical waters at the Thracian Mountains of Ganga. A hunt bear hunt in the highlands of Asia Minor. A quest - about the searching out of Hades' much-loved Greek mythology books - to take down a mountain lion that had been terrorizing the people of Licia. On all these adventures, the new obsession with each other grew steadily.

wafted by attendants dressed as cupids and sea-nymphs: Cleopatra. Ruler of Egypt. Goddess of the Nile. Queen of one of the wealthiest countries in the world. Beautiful, certainly, at just twenty eight, but more than anything, utterly, alluringly certain of her star-quality charisma. As one writer put it, "her sex appeal, together with her powers of persuasion and her ability to charm all around her, made her simply, irresistibly desirable." This was who had come to call on Mark Antony, one of the most powerful men in Rome (and so, at that time, the world). Antony was a soldier, a devotee of the wine-god Dionysus, a playboy extraordinaire - a man, in other words, who lived life in vivid technicolour.

If anyone was going to make Rome's fun-loving general pay attention, it was going to be the young queen sailing towards him dressed in gold.

But there was more to this than just sex appeal. For Antony, vying to hold onto his position of power amidst the remains of the crumbling Roman Republic, Cleopatra meant Egypt, and Egypt meant two things: grain and gold. Both were essential to fund (and feed) his battle for world domination. For Cleopatra, Antony meant Rome's backing for her precarious hold on power back home, following a decade of civil war, during which the young queen had gone into exile and returned with an army to take the throne from her brother. No meeting could be more important for either of them. It was a moment well worth a bit of theatre, not to mention a spot of role play.

Boreal Conifers

One of the most ancient tree species, conifers are synonymous with boreal forests. Densely packed green firs, spruces and pines all tower high above the dark, damp ground below, while in autumn, the larch brightens up the scene with a warm golden glow.

Conifer basically means 'cone-bearing' and instead of flowers, these trees produce seeds in cones. Conifers are evergreen which means they start producing food as soon as they wake up after the winter and don't have to wait for new needles to grow. The larch is the odd one out. Being a deciduous conifer it loses its needles each year. However, larches have delicate needles compared to evergreen conifers, so they are quicker and easier to grow.

Although their growth is slow, conifers have adapted to be able to cope with the harsh weather. Their recognisable narrow, conical-shaped canopies are made up of flexible branches that sweep outwards. This design helps to shed heavy snowfall and reduce the potential damage to the branches from snow and strong winds.

TEMPERATE CONIFER FORESTS

Boreal Broadleaves

Although boreal forests, or 'taiga', are dominated by conifers, there is also a very small but hardy selection of broadleaved trees present, including poplars, willows and birches.

While generally short-lived species, rarely reaching 100 years, these trees have many characteristics that help them survive in the taiga. They can all grow, flower and fruit during the short summer, and then shed their leaves at just the right moment to prepare for the long winter. Their compact leaves have a small surface area, which means they can be produced quickly – ideally suited for a forest with a short growing season – and they are also able to withstand strong winds.

The broadleaved trees grow near water, making the most not only of the available moisture there, but also the light levels around lakes and rivers where there is no competition from the dense-leaved conifers. In the northern tundra, these trees are short and stunted but further south, towards the temperate broadleaved forest, they have straighter trunks and grow taller.

Redwoods

The majestic redwoods are record-breaking conifers and include some of the largest and tallest trees on Earth. One impressive coast redwood called 'Hyperion' has reached the dizzying height of just over 115m. The oldest specimen on record is estimated to be 3,500 years old.

The dawn redwood grows in China, while the giant and coast redwoods grow in North America. The North American species are never found together: the coast redwoods grow in the fog belts of the Pacific coastline and the giant redwoods in open grassland further inland, on the western slopes of the Sierra Nevada mountains. Both trees have extremely wide trunks, defined by spongy, cinnamon-red bark, growing up to 60cm thick, and their evergreen branches start high up the trunk, which protects them from forest fires.

Unlike the two North American redwoods, the Chinese dawn redwood is a deciduous conifer with flat, feathery needle-like leaves and reddish-brown, fluted bark. Interestingly, it was first discovered in 1941 as a 150-million-year-old fossil tree dating from the Mesozoic Era. A few years later, a living specimen was found in Central China. Seeds were collected and distributed to arboreta around the world, where they grew today.

TEMPERATE BROADLEAF FORESTS

Habitat: Temperate Broadleaf Forest

Temperate deciduous forests make up some of the world's most dramatic biomes. These forests produce dappled light at the start of the growing season, transforming to lush greens, then bursting into blazing reds, oranges, yellows and browns before their leaves drop, leaving bare, skeletal structures to face the cold months ahead.

These magnificent forests occur mainly in the mid-latitude parts of the globe, encompassing parts of the United States, Canada, Europe, China, Korea, Japan and Russia and South America. All of these regions have four seasons, with no season getting too hot or too cold.

Annually, all these forests share similar genera of tree species, which include oaks, maples, beeches and alders, but also have their own native species in each region. Beneath these forest giants, smaller shade-tolerant species such as dogwoods and sourwoods fill the understorey and shrub layers, mingling with ferns and mosses to create perfect hidden habitats for birds and small mammals. The forest floor itself is full of insects and fungi, who enjoy the rich, fertile soil created by falling leaves and decaying wood.

WHAT ARE THE NORSE MYTHS?

Text 10K

THE CREATION STORY

A creation myth is a story about how the world began. Ancient cultures had all sorts of weird and wonderful ideas about how the world began, and this is the Norse creation story. Here are some of the details.

THE THEFT OF IDUN'S APPLES

One crisp, cold morning, Odin, Loki and their crew crossed the Bifrost bridge from their home in Asgard and went hiking in the world of humans.

After a long day, at last, Odin built a fire and grilled three or steaks over the flames. The steaks sizzled and sizzled, but somehow did not cook.

The eagle swooped another sparrow, causing the branch to stick to its body, and to Loki's hands.

Loki begged the bird for mercy, offering to do it a favour in return for his release.

IN AN ORCHARD FAR, FAR AWAY...

The goddess Idun was sitting in her sun-dappled orchard, tending her back. For apples were scarce in Asgard as they reached youth to wherever she went. Needless to say, she was very popular with everyone.

Loki crept into the orchard and called up to Idun.

The steaks had been on the fire for hours, but they were still raw.

Perched in the oak tree above their heads was an enormous eagle. An enormous talking eagle.

The magical eagle swooped down from the branches. It snatched up two steaks in its talons and another in its beak.

The cunning sorcerer told Idun that he had found another golden eagle tree. It was in Midgard, just beyond the Bifrost bridge, and its apples looked exactly like Idun's apples.

Idun was worried about what this would mean for her brand. She picked up all the golden apples on her tree, then followed Loki out of the orchard and across the flaming Bifrost bridge.

Loki was the quickest to react.

INTRODUCTION

Plumbers have dreamed about Purgatory for thousands of years. It's not hard to imagine our positive emotions, who possessed the ability itself to create beautiful, even paintings of the world around them - the landscapes, animals and each other - staring into the skies to watch birds wheel and swoop overhead and thriving by themselves. Were they at sea? In the sky? And what did the world look like from up there? You've probably had a similar daydream yourself: standing your house from above, then turning towards the sun, feeling the wind flow over your head, and staring towards the horizon and the unknown world beyond.

The first true atomic capsule of lifting people is relative safety and carrying them for descent. Helicopters were not just air balloons. The first was launched to great fortune in France in 1783. Suddenly it was possible for people to take to the skies, and it indicated a theory of public interest in the notion of flight. Many more dangers followed. Helicopters were immediately put to use by armies to spy on enemy movements from above. But balloons are actually at the mercy of the wind, and pilots have to control over their direction of travel.

They changed one fatal fly in WWII, when the first powered flight in an airplane called the Flyer was made. It only lasted for 12 seconds, but it was enough to change our world. From that moment on, the development of the airplane has never stopped. The constant advancement in aviation technology funded with so much money, energy, materials and technical expertise, is carried out because airplanes are so useful. They transport people and cargo faster than any other vehicle. They are a vital part of military campaigns. They help us map, explore and learn about our world. They entertain us with aerobatic displays of speed and maneuverability. They make it so much easier to get to where we want to go.

Don your relaxation goggles and prepare for a breath-taking journey through the clouds.

- AMAZING AIRCRAFT
WRIGHT FLYER

On December 17th, 1903, Wilbur and Orville Wright changed the world forever. For years, they mathematically studied American brothers had shared a vision of creating a machine that could fly further and more reliably than a glider, and, unlike air or balloons, wasn't forced to fly in a particular direction by the wind. In short: the first flying vehicle that the pilot had complete control over. After years of planning and countless experiments, their vision became a history-making reality in the sandy dunes of Outer Banks, North Carolina, USA.

Charlie Wright by an ice stomach, gripping the Flyer's control stick. Two propellers whirled on either side of him. These were connected by bicycle chains to a lightweight patrol engine designed specially by the Wright brothers' mechanic friend Charlie Taylor; the engine had no throttle control, it was either 'on' or

With the air on alongside as the F4U trundled down a wooden launch rail, took off and flew close to the ground for 12 seconds. Three more flights occurred that day, the last being the longest at 59 seconds and 260m. Unfortunately, the F4U was damaged on landing and never flew again.

But this was only the beginning. News of the Wright brothers' incredible achievement spread, and soon other inventors were building on their ideas to create even more amazingly complex planes. The first circumnavigation around the world was completed in four Douglas World Cruiser airplanes only 21 years later. By the 1930s, jet aircraft were roaring through the air. Today, we see aircraft in defined categories: ferry cargo, ferry out the heavy rescue operations, and explore and travel the world – minutes of flight are abbreviated by the Wright brothers.

WOOD, CANVAS AND STRING

The airplane was only a year or two away from being used more often in combat when the First World War broke out in 1914. But over the course of the next five years, both sides realized just how useful these flying machines could be. Airplane technology advanced rapidly as each side strove to gain an superiority.

Most aircraft were unarmed at the start of the war. Pilots had to sit at enemy planes with pistols, often in hand-held machine guns. In later aircraft had rear-firing machine guns for defense, but a fighter plane needs guns that fire forwards. Introduced in 1915, German Fokker E.III everywhere had forward-firing guns designed about bullets between the propeller blades as they rotated.

As the war progressed, both sides developed aircraft that were more manoeuvrable, could fly and gun at altitude faster, and take more damage. As technology improved, combat aircraft could be put to more uses. As well as a fighter, the British Sigbee Camel was also used as a 'low-land' 'branch' similar to attacking targets on the ground with bombs and machine guns.

The best targets occur when the Mustangs fly in a loose echelon, says page 27, but lumber away than fighters. Explains drop its fuselage and machine guns.

The pilots who drifted over war-torn Europe needed calm nerves and skill. Moreover, many had very little training, and life expectancy was short. Pilots who died down more than 100 miles were called 'scoops'. This Fokker D-7 triplane was flown by German ace Manfred von Richthofen - also known as the Red Baron.

Celebrate the achievements made in medical engineering and take a glimpse into the future.

- Winner of the 2024 SLA Information Book Award Judges' Choice Category 8-12
- As told by UK Sepsis Ambassador Patrick TJ Kane
- Phenomenal artwork by highly acclaimed artist Samuel Rodriguez
- The first of its kind - a book that celebrates the history of medical implantables and prosthetics
- The forefront of diversity - featuring stories from celebrities and people around the world

Imagine a world where all around us are people with blinks, biotics, bioactive extended lenses and cameras for eyes. This same world would be filled with people who can see through walls, and even people who use robotic technology to walk themselves. This world, children learn to live with external ears, and people born without eyes use cameras for eyes. People who are blind use cameras to see things. People who are deaf use cameras to get their attention, or to pay for their coffees on their way into work. This world is full of accessible people and it uses technology to do amazing things. But the event horizon of technology is not the end of the world. It is only the beginning.

Technology has changed all of our lives, and not just with the smartphones or tablets that we use. For some people, particularly those with disabilities, recent technological advances have created the reality of a world where they can live more fully and more independently. At all the time, our biologic technology exists in a race to right of our survival.

From a space from science fiction, the future is in fact already here.

This book explores the most recent advances that are making history. From the space race and the moon landing to the space shuttle (Apollo 11) and includes some of the more mind-blowing that are yet here. We will also look forward at the exciting moments that are around the corner, in the next few years. We will look at the future of technology, and how it is already helping, and how it will help to get us closer to Mars.

For as long as humans have been around, we have been losing limbs or are born without them. Whether due to an injury or congenital impairment (a condition that is present from birth), people have been trying to replace missing arms, legs, fingers and toes for thousands of years. Early prostheses were revolutionary for their time, yet their inventors did not have the technology needed to provide better functionality and comfort. Even so, some of these early prostheses closely resemble those that exist today.

The earliest written example of a prosthetic (an artificial body part) belonged to an Egyptian mummy over 2,000 years ago. This wooden prosthetic replaced the big toe on her right foot, and even had a ridge in the shape of a nail carved into it to make it appear more realistic. It would have been strapped onto her foot with string, and scientists believe that it would have greatly aided her balance.

The earliest written mention of a prosthetic device to around 77 and describes the iron hand belonging to the Roman general, Marcus Sergius. Sergius was said to be one of the finest generals of his time, especially because of his bravery in battle. Across the campaigns he was awarded 23 times, resulting in the loss of his right hand. Sergius's replacement hand was shipped to his army, perhaps allowing him to hold a shield for future battles.

Count Götz von Berlichingen
Perhaps the most famous example of an early prosthesis is that belonging to the German knight, Count Götz von Berlichingen, who lost his hand during battle in the early 1500s. Undeterred, Count Götz asked local craftsmen to create an iron hand with digits (fingers and thumb) that could lock into place, so he could hold a horse's reins or a weapon. His love for warfare became so famous that some people believe it inspired the phrase, "to rule with an iron fist".

[illegible]

A prosthesis can be internal or external to the body. The ways in which people can replace parts of their body can largely be broken down into two groups: bionic limbs and implantable devices.

'Implantable devices' is a broad term describing anything that is surgically implanted inside the body. Because surgery is required to gain access, these devices cannot easily be removed, and are typically designed to stay inside the body forever. Examples of these include pacemakers and cochlear implants.

Bionic limbs are artificial body parts, which are intended to replace the function of a human body part, such as an arm or a leg. These are attached to the body, usually via a belt, strap or socket, and can be easily taken on and off by their wearer.

If either a bionic limb or an implant has batteries that need to be charged, they are called 'active'. Those that do not are called 'passive'. Some implants, such as cochlear implants, need batteries. These sit outside the body and attach to the implant via a wire, so the user does not need surgery every time the battery runs out (see pages 28–29).

Funk came from New Orleans in America around the late 1930s and early 1960s centuries. It is still being heard because it is GOOD! You'll know it's just because the beats in the music are so great! Funk is irregular (and a pop-funk) - it makes you swing and dance.

Funk was created by African Americans living in New Orleans, ELVA FITTING along the Mississippi Riverlands and pop with words. LUGS AMSTERDAM named that, making music as he sang along. THOM COLTRANE blew the saxophone, bringing the sound instrument in. PULE BRISTOL worked the trumpet.

Ruby, blue, red and pink have all been influenced by funk.

Irregular!
