Mythical Tales

MĀUI SLOWS THE SUN

A tale from Polynesia

Like many trickster figures in mythical stories, Maul is always getting into trouble, but his schemes and mischievous deeds often help people in some way or another. Mani never knows when 'enough is enough' ... but that's why so many people love him and tell stories about him. This retelling of one of Maui's most famous schemes is mostly based on Hawailan versions of the story, where we meet some of Maui's older, wiser (but no less magical) female relatives.

Long ago, soon after Maui pulled islands up out of the sea with his magic fish hook, the Sun was in a big hurry. Each day it ran across the sky on its sixteen legs, each of which shone out around it and gove people light and wormth. But the Sun ran too fast the days were too short for engage to finish anuthing. Mending fishing not building houses and hunting for food was far more difficult in the dark of the long nights, and making clothes was impossible. Sheets of tapa bark had to be dried in the sun to make clothes, but there just wesn't enough time. One day, Mouil mother, Hina, complained to her son.

you must also plait them together with strands of your sister's hair ... if she will give them to you. Only then will they be strong enough to stop the Sun." "Fast!" said Main. He travelled across the islands to the marshu banana groves of the deep jungle, where the Olona plants grow. He gothered a heap of them and took them to his sister. "Sister! My plan is to slow the Sun!" he said. "Help me make strong fibres from these plants, and then lend me ixteen strands of your hair to weave them into sixteen ong ropes, one for each leg of the Sun."

MĀUI SLOWS THE SUN

"Every morning at down I lay out the bark, but surset always comes to quickly! Things cannot go on like this."

"Everyone says the same," Mani replied. "But don't worry, I have an idea! I will go and capture the Sun. I'll cut off its legs, or tie them up, and force it to Maui was always having big ideas, but this was his biggest yet. Everyone always doubted Maui and his ideas - but Maui knew different, "Dido't I fish islands up from under the sea, and separate the sky from the ground, so people would have space to walk about, and steal fire, which people use every day? If anyone can slow the Sun, it is me! I will make a strong rope. I'll go to where the Sun rises, and I'll copture it, just wotch me!"

Maur's mother looked him up and down, "If the Sun has sixteen legs, you will need sixteen strong ropes made of fibres from the Olona nettle plant," she said. "But Sometimes you see him on the lake in a boat, cacking like this." Daz. justed a face like a cat that was about to be

"C-can he do that?" asked Kinyi. The others turned to her, surprised. This was the first thing they remembered Kinyi saying since they arrived.

Then suddenly, she screams

The Early Birds looked at each other in utter astonishment, then sprinted towards the lake. Poppy followed, barking madly. She didn't have a clue what was going on, but she loved running.

"Y-you realise what's happening now right?!" puffed Pawan, struggling to keep up with the others. "A SUPERHERO ORIGIN STORY! Space rock falls from the sky, local kids find space rock, space rock makes them FLY or TURN STRETCHY or give them the power to make people EXPLODE or something!"

"Was it definitely a space rock?" asked Val. "Whatbit called? An asteroid. Maybe it was a satellite. Or a part of a PLANEI I heard once that an aeroplane's toilet chute opened and the stuff-inside fell out of the sky, and because it's SO cold up there, it FROZE and hit a man and everyone knew that he'd been squashed by a massive frozen ball of POO!"

"Definitely not poo," said Frankie, who had made it to the shore first.

The others arrived and stared out at the emanating water. "Poo doesn't glow."

"Woah" said Val, astutely.

"I guess we should report this to, uh, whoever you report asteroids to?" Frankie posited.

"Um, sorry, I think you mean meteorite," said Xinyi, apologetically, "Asteroids are when they are in space. When they fall they are a meteor, and when it lands it's a... meteorite..." Xinyi frowned. WHY did I have to say that for? Now they'll think I'm a COMPLETE dweeb...

Frankie turned to her and smiled. "Thanks Xinyi. It's probably best we know exactly what it is when we tell—"

"Or," interrupted Val. "we DON'T tell anyone and fish it out ourselves!" The gang looked down at the glow once more. Pawan nodded slowly, "Yeah. I mean, do you KNOW how much meteorites go for online?" He said, biting his lip. "Like, mucho gold coins. Plus, still hoping for superpowers here..?"

"Yeah! Come on Frank-le-plank," beamed Val, "I wanna make people explode!"

Frankie sighed. She saw what this was. Just because she was older – just because she was older – just because she was older – just because she wasn't suggesting stupid things like FISHING FOR (potentially) MAGIC SPACE ROCKS – they were making her be the mum. The sensible one. The leader. Frankie took a deep breath. Not today. Not this entire summer, actually. She had decided in the car that this summer, she wasn't going to be in charge of ANYTHING. Especially not Val.

"Yeah, okay. Let's get the meteorite out of the lake," the new, relaxed go-withthe-flow Frankie replied. "So... how are we going to do that?"

How COULD the gang fish the meteorite out the lake? When you think you've got it, turn to the next page - or check the answer at the back!

Hint: Try skipping back a few pages and see if there's any helpful lake-related gearl Prized by the travelling people of the Middle East, this exotic breed is thought to take its name from the Arabian city of Saluk. To the sheikhs, it was a noble dog indeed and they kept precise records of breeding and hunting prowess. They hunted hare, fox and gazelle from horseback, so their hounds had to be fleet of foot. There were once two different types of Saluki – desert and mountain – but the two have merged into the modern breed. It has, however, retained its beauty and some of its speed, so be prepared to do a lot of jogging...

Life Expectancy 12-14 Years | Height 58-71cm | Trainability Intelligent but opinionated | Grooming Weekly brushing |
Exercise Daily runs | Most likely to say Make sure you got my best side | Least likely to say it's okay, I'll sleep on the floor

This impressive breed is one of the oldest in the world and has changed very little, still resembling its wolf ancestors. It was used by the Mahlemut people to pull sleds and hunt seals. It is a strong and imposing animal, but it isn't much use as a watchdog—Malamutes regard everyone they meet as friends. They rarely bark, but make a charming 'woo-woo' noise. They're intelligent too, which means they can easily get bored... and a bored Malamute is trouble in waiting. They love to dig holes in the garden, or sniff across the kitchen counters for something tasty, so keep them busy!

Life Expectancy 12-15 Years | Height 53-64cm | Trainability Easy, but can get borned | Greening Needed every day | Exercise Local
This is an energetic breed | Most likely to say This looks like a good spot to dig! | Least likely to say (to anyone) You shall not pass

Tales from Beyond the Stars

The soldiers scurried and ran, struggling to right their cannons, all aimed into the pit, to bear on this new target. But they were too slow! The giant tripod stepped easily amongst them, shooting its heat ray at this gun and that, and in moments the artillery was all destroyed. Only one gun got off a shot, and it whistled past the tripod's legs and fell away into the far reaches of the common.

Now everything was choos. Soldiers took up position, aiming their rifles and firing. The civilians were swarming away, screaming and shouting, running for their lives. I heard the snop of rifle fire and the ping as bullets bounced off the metal hood of the Martian machine, but I too was running, lumbering up a slope and away.

It was going uphill that saved my life, for the Martian tripod now deployed a second weapon: a naxious black smoke pouring out of the rear of its cockpit, sinking through the air and asphysiating all upon whom it fell. By the time I had reached the top of the hill I looked down upon a terrible scene; the black smoke was everywhere in the hollow, rolling like a foul mist, and all human resistance had been extinguished.

From the Martian tripod came an awful, howling cry, loud enough to bowl me over.

I pressed my hands to my ears but the sound penetrated: ullaaaaah!

I stumbled away from the common, the horrible shrieks of the Martian splitting the air behind me.

My bicycle was lost. My clothes were covered in dirt. I hid behind a wall for a while to catch my breath and listened; screams, crashes, the cockling sound of burning buildings, the thud of tripods – for there were several now – stamping about the countryside, and again and again the cries of ullavaavah!

On The Streets of Paris

Café Life

Today I'm feeling extremely Parislan.
So i'd better show myself to the tourists.
I shall wear my chic things, and I shall take a book, and I shall wear my nonchalant look.
I shall sip a small coffee at a cafe nearby, en terrasse, with the wind in my face, and i'll act like I'm part of the landscape.

Every detail must be right. The pigeons must coo.
The waiter must be rude, and my cheeks must be rouged, and i'll stare at the book, and i'll stare at the sky, and sometimes i'll sigh, and I won't notice you taking photos of me, or talking about me, or thinking about me, and I'll live on forever in your stories of Paris, spiky with upspeak:

"We saw this woman; she was like, so chic? She had, like, a book? and a nonchalant look?

and she was sipping coffee? at a café nearby? Ah! Those Parislans, un café, un livre, la joie de vivre."

It's tiring. It's a job, It's a duty. It's a mission, that whole thing of being, sometimes, a Parislan.
