Human 2.0

INTRODUCTION

Imagine a world where all around us are people with bionic limbs, machines attached to their bodies and cameras for eyes. This same world has cyborgs who can hear colours and communicate via their teeth, and even people who use robotic skeletons to walk elsewhere. In this world, children have to hear with external ears, and people have without legs can walk using ones made of metal and carbon fibre. Some people use chips inside their bodies to get into their offices, or to pay for their coffees on their way into work. This world is full of incredible people who are using technology to do amazing things. But the most amazing part of all is that this world is the one we already live in.

Technology has changed all of our lives, and not just with the smartphones or tablets that we use. For many people, particularly those with disabilities, recent technological advances have created the means of the greatly improved, and reached a place of possibility. The idea of a bionic limb, for example, is not a new one, and it's not a far-fetched idea. Far from a scene from a science fiction film, the future is far away from us. This book explores the most recent advances in bionic limbs, from intricate bionic hands (see pages 32-33) to internal implants (pages 40-41), and includes some of the most remarkable that get us there. We will also look forward at the exciting innovations that are around the corner, as well as what they mean for us as a species. Our journey to the future has already begun, and it is time to get to know Human 2.0.

THE FIRST PROSTHESES

For as long as humans have been around, we have been losing limbs, or we have lost them. Whether due to an injury or congenital impairment (a condition that is present from birth), people have been trying to replace missing arms, legs, fingers and toes for thousands of years. Early prostheses were rudimentary for their time, yet their inventors did not have the technology needed to provide better functionality and comfort. For us, some of these early prostheses closely resemble those that exist today.

The earliest known example of a prosthesis (an artificial body part) belonged to an Egyptian mummyman over 2,000 years ago. This wooden prosthesis replaced the leg on his right foot, and even had a ridge in the shape of a nail carved into it to make it appear more realistic. It would have been strapped onto his foot with string, and scientists believe that it would have greatly altered his balance.

The earliest written mention of a prosthesis dates to around 17 BC, and describes the iron hand belonging to the Roman general Marcus Regulus. Regulus was said to be one of the first general of his time, especially because of his bravery in battle. Across his campaign he was awarded 23 times, resulting in the loss of his right hand. Regulus's replacement hand was designed by his army, perhaps allowing him to hold a sword for future battles.

Count Götz von Berlichingen Perhaps the most famous example of an early prosthesis is that belonging to the German knight Count Götz von Berlichingen, who lost his hand during battle in the early 1500s. Count Götz asked local craftsmen to make an iron hand with digits, fingers and thumb that could lock into place, so he could hold a horse's reins or a weapon. This hand was the first to be made of metal, and some people believe it inspired the phrase, 'to ride with an iron fist'.

WHAT IS BIONIC?

Bionics refers to the transfer of technology between artificial objects and living organisms. The word 'bionics' comes from a combination of the Greek words for 'bio' (life) and 'nautics' (navigation). It was coined by American engineer and MIT professor Jack E. Parnes in the 1960s.

When it comes to the bionics movement, Dr. Robert Schoenberg, the founder of 'bionics' - the transfer of ideas from biology to technology - in 1960. Schoenberg presented an ambitious lecture and reported a gathering of experts on the topic of how new technologies could be discovered by looking at animals in nature. This kind of research is known as biomimicry. A lot of the bionics movement is based on the fact that many technological innovations inspired by the structure of plants or animals. Bionics is a field of study that has been around since the 1960s, and it has been used to describe a wide range of bionic devices and ideas.

BIONIC LIMBS AND IMPLANTABLE DEVICES

A prosthesis can be internal or external to the body. The ways in which people can replace parts of their body can largely be broken down into two groups: bionic limbs and implantable devices.

'Implantable devices' is a broad term describing anything that is surgically implanted inside the body. Because surgery is required to gain access, these devices cannot easily be removed, and are typically designed to stay inside the body forever. Examples of these include pacemakers and cochlear implants.

Bionic limbs are artificial body parts, which are intended to replace the function of a human body part, such as an arm or a leg. These are attached to the body, usually via a belt, strap or socket, and can be easily taken on and off by their wearer.

If either a bionic limb or an implant has batteries that need to be charged, they are called 'active'. Those that do not are called 'passive'. Some implants, such as cochlear implants, need batteries. These sit outside the body and attach to the implant via a wire, so the user does not need surgery every time the battery runs out (see pages 28-29).

RICH AND POOR

THE HISTORY OF WEALTH

Wealth is the difference in wealth between the richest and the poorest. It has been around since the first humans lived. In the early days, wealth was measured in terms of land and livestock. As time went on, it became more complex, including money, art, and technology. Today, wealth is often measured in terms of money and property.

WEALTH CONCENTRATION

One of the biggest reasons for inequality is the way that wealth tends to get concentrated in the hands of a few. This is often due to the fact that wealthy people have more resources and can invest their money more effectively than the poor. This leads to a cycle where the rich get richer and the poor get poorer.

CAUSES OF INEQUALITY

There are many reasons for wealth inequality. Some people have more talent or skills than others, which gives them an advantage in the workforce. Others have more access to education and training, which also gives them an advantage. Finally, some people are simply born into wealth, while others are born into poverty.

WHAT'S WRONG WITH WEALTH INEQUALITY?

When a small number of people own most of the wealth in a country, it can lead to a number of problems. For example, it can lead to a lack of social mobility, where the poor are unable to improve their lives. It can also lead to a lack of investment in public services, which can further exacerbate the inequality.

GOLDEN YEARS

When a country enjoys the gold standard, its currency becomes convertible to gold at a fixed rate. For example, in the UK, one pound was equal to one shilling and two pence. This meant that the value of the pound was fixed to the value of gold. This system was used by many countries in the early 20th century.

AN INTERNATIONAL SYSTEM

In the 19th century, the gold standard was formally adopted by many countries. This meant that they all had a fixed exchange rate with each other. This made it easier for them to trade with each other, as they knew exactly how much their money was worth.

THE COST OF WAR

After World War I, the gold standard was abandoned. This was because the war had caused so much damage to the world's economy that it was no longer possible to maintain the gold standard. This led to a period of financial instability and uncertainty.

THE GOLD DUCK

In 1933, the US President Franklin D. Roosevelt ordered the withdrawal of gold coins from circulation. This was done to prevent the export of gold from the US and to maintain the value of the dollar. This move was controversial and led to a period of uncertainty.

FROM COUNTERFEIT COINS TO FALSE NOTES

For as long as money has existed, people have tried to forge it. Counterfeiting is the act of creating fake money that is indistinguishable from the real thing. This has been a problem for governments for centuries.

FIRST FORGERIES

The first known counterfeit coins were made in ancient Greece. These coins were made of a different metal than the real ones, but they looked exactly the same. This led to a loss of confidence in the currency.

ALVES dos REIS

Alves dos Reis was a Portuguese master counterfeiter who lived in the 18th century. He was famous for his ability to create fake banknotes that were almost perfect. He was eventually caught and executed for his crimes.

THE BANK OF ENGLAND

The Bank of England was the first to issue banknotes in the UK. It was founded in 1694 and has since become one of the most powerful financial institutions in the world. It has been responsible for creating and managing the UK's money supply.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

At regular markets people buy and sell things like food and clothing. At financial markets, people trade money-related assets. These include stocks and bonds. Stocks are shares in a company that the company sells to raise capital. Shareholders are paid dividends (regular sums paid out of the company's profits). Bonds are certificates issued by a government or corporation, promising to repay borrowed money at a fixed rate of interest. Financial markets can be physical places, like the New York Stock Exchange, or they can take place online.

THE FIRST BONDS

In the twelfth century, the government of Venice came up with a new way of raising money to fight a war. It offered its citizens certificates, known as prestiti, in exchange for a loan, promising to pay them back by a certain time, plus 5 per cent interest. These were the first government bonds. Before long they became a popular investment, and a market developed for the buying and selling of prestiti.

THE FIRST STOCKS

Founded in 1602, the Dutch East India Company was the first company to sell shares to the public. The money it raised from this funded its voyages to the East Indies, and it paid its shareholders out of the profits from its trade in enslaved people and spices. The shares were traded in the Amsterdam Stock Exchange, also established that year.

THE DAILY NEWS

OCTOBER 1929 NEW YORK CITY

THE WALL STREET CRASH

FINANCIAL MARKETS CAN BE VOLATILE. A RUMOUR OR A MINOR PIECE OF ECONOMIC NEWS CAN CAUSE BIG SWINGS IN PRICES. THE DESIRE TO MAKE MONEY OR AVOID LOSING IT IS A POWERFUL ONE, AND A HERD INSTINCT CAN SOMETIMES TAKE OVER WITH PEOPLE STAMPEDING TO BUY OR SELL. THE MOST SPECTACULAR EXAMPLE OF THIS WAS THE WALL STREET CRASH OF 1929.

THE ROARING TWENTIES

The 1920s was boom time in the United States. There was a spirit of optimism in the country and it became fashionable to play the stock market. Share prices soon rocketed to a point where they represented a value far greater than the total worth of their companies' assets. This was now a mania – a period when everyone, from wealthy financiers to common investors, lost touch with reality and seemed to believe that prices could keep rising forever.

AFTER EFFECTS

As a result of the crash, businesses were bankrupted, banks closed, millions lost their jobs and the world plunged into a deep and lasting economic depression. This had a big political impact. In Europe, extreme right-wing parties exploited the misery of mass unemployment, blaming 'foreigners' such as Jews. Germany's Nazi Party rose to power in 1933. The consequences for the world would be devastating.

DISASTER

The crash occurred at the end of October 1929, during three calamitous days of trading at the New York Stock Exchange on Wall Street, when huge numbers of people decided collectively it was time to sell. With so many sellers, there were few buyers, and share prices plummeted. In those three days, billions of dollars were wiped off the value of American companies. And over the following years the market kept on falling. By 1932, stocks had lost nearly 90 per cent of their pre-crash value.

Wheel

"The revolutionary design that makes the world go round"

17

Can you imagine a world without wheels? Apart from sledges and ships, there would be no vehicles—no carts, bikes, buses, trucks, trains, or airplanes. The first wheeled vehicles were animal-drawn carts with solid wooden wheels. They were invented in Mesopotamia (modern-day Iraq) around 3500 BCE. 300 years after the horizontal potter's wheel. These carts carried cargo to market and heavy loads, such as stone and timber for building projects. The horse-drawn chariot came next. In about 2500 BCE, chariot wheels were spoked rather than solid like a cartwheel, so they were faster and lighter. The wheel may be one of the simplest inventions, but without it our world would be completely different.

Potter's Wheel

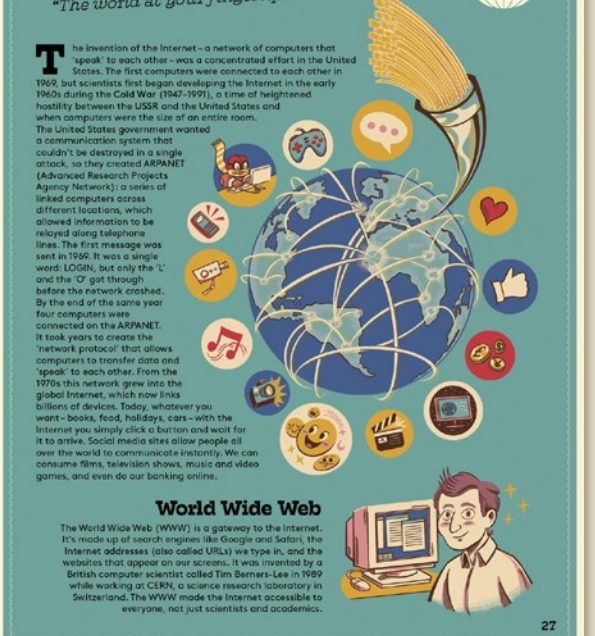

The very first wheels were used to make pottery. The art of pottery began around 30,000 years ago. Originally, potters would shape clay into pots with their hands, but this took a long time. The Mesopotamians invented a better method in around 3500 BCE. The potter's wheel was a large stone disc balanced on a stick called an axle, which could be spun. By putting clay on the wheel and spinning it, the potter could shape the clay quickly into pots. We don't know for sure, but it seems likely that the potter's wheel led to the invention of the vehicle wheel.

Internet

The invention of the Internet—a network of computers that 'speak' to each other—was a concentrated effort in the United States. The first computers were connected to each other in 1969, but scientists first began developing the Internet in the early 1950s during the Cold War (1947–1991), a time of heightened hostility between the USSR and the United States and when computers were the size of an entire room. The United States government wanted a communication system that couldn't be destroyed in a single attack, so they created ARPANET (Advanced Research Projects Agency Network): a series of linked computers across different locations, which allowed information to be relayed along telephone lines. The first message was sent in 1969. It was a single word: LOGIN, but only the 'L' and the 'O' got through before the network crashed. By the end of the same year, four computers were connected on the ARPANET. It took years to create the 'network protocol' that allows computers to transfer data and 'speak' to each other. From the 1970s this network grew into the global Internet, which now links billions of devices. Today, whatever you want—books, food, holidays, cars—with the Internet you simply click a button and wait for it to arrive. Social media sites allow people all over the world to communicate instantly. We can consume films, television shows, music and video games, and even do our banking online.

World Wide Web

The World Wide Web (WWW) is a gateway to the Internet. It's made up of search engines like Google and Safari, the Internet addresses (also called URLs) we type in, and the websites that appear on our screens. It was invented by a British computer scientist called Tim Berners-Lee in 1989 while working at CERN, a science research laboratory in Switzerland. The WWW made the Internet accessible to everyone, not just scientists and academics.

Ancient Love Stories

THE SACRED BAND OF THEBES

This was the final meeting place of the Sacred Band of Thebes, one of the most remarkable and most loyal armies that had ever lived. A bold experiment in an age torn apart by warring wars and broken alliances, who had been fighting for the freedom of the Greeks. An army, not just of soldiers, but of a hundred and fifty male lovers.

Bound together by love loyalty to each other, the crack team of warriors was founded in Thebes in 378 BC by an extraordinary visionary by the name of Pammenes. It began as a resistance corps against the looming military power of Sparta (renowned the world over for its famously trained soldiers) across the mountain to the south. These were chivalrous, quarrelsome young men, splashing blood across the pages of history, and well suited to the birth of a new kind of army.

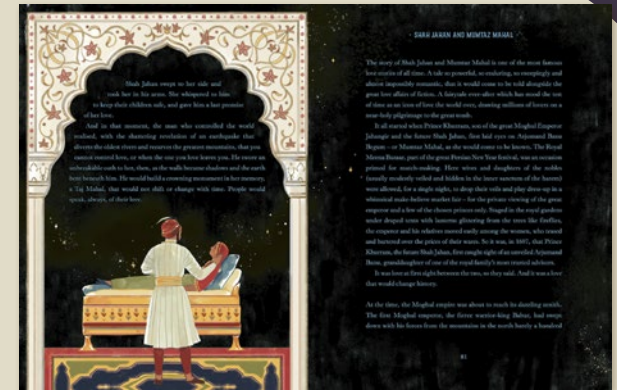

HADES AND ANTINOUS

These pairs first crossed across years earlier, when Hades - ruler of the Roman world and self-proclaimed prince of peace - took a summer jaunt across the Roman province of Bithynia, in northern Turkey, where Antinous had his home. The emperor, busy with the day job, probably did not spot Antinous among the crowds of adoring subjects and eager petitioners. But one of his women did - and, no doubt, with an eye to the emperor's taste, spent a night in the meeting in the beautiful, beach-looked young man. Antinous was duly offered a dream career: admission to the exclusive imperial retinue along with a tuition package to the emperor's personal academy in Rome. To be fair, from a dusty village on the fringes of the Roman empire, this must have seemed an offer too good to be true - a one-way ticket to live among the stars. But, it was a good mistake if anything would have known. By invitation to the sun and you might get burned.

Antinous' due to the top was meteoric even by Roman standards, where there were plenty of high achievers who made it to the big time. But among the other staff of the imperial household, Antinous - famously good-looking, smart, with a magnetic personality and a sensitive nature for Hades' beloved horse - quickly caught the emperor's eye. Hades was instantly besotted, and Antinous became his paragon. In the summer of 130 AD, at the age of seventeen, Antinous was personally selected to accompany Hades on a tour of Greece (Hades was a notorious Greek enthusiast, then said: Asia Minor and, finally, Egypt).

It was clear to everyone that Hades was something to be Antinous out of his sight - and together, they took part in many extraordinary experiences on their round-the-world trip. A night-long dip into mystical waters at the Thessalian Mountains of Greece. A hunt bear hunt in the highlands of Asia Minor. A quest - about the searching out of Hades' much-loved Greek mythology books - to take down a mountain lion that had been terrorizing the people of Licia. On all these adventures, the new obsession with each other grew steadily.

MARK ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA

Mark Antony was to his side and Cleopatra was to his side, and together, they took part in many extraordinary experiences on their round-the-world trip. A night-long dip into mystical waters at the Thessalian Mountains of Greece. A hunt bear hunt in the highlands of Asia Minor. A quest - about the searching out of Hades' much-loved Greek mythology books - to take down a mountain lion that had been terrorizing the people of Licia. On all these adventures, the new obsession with each other grew steadily.

MARK ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA

wafted by attendants dressed as cupids and sea-nymphs: Cleopatra. Ruler of Egypt. Goddess of the Nile. Queen of one of the wealthiest countries in the world. Beautiful, certainly, at just twenty eight, but more than anything, utterly, alluringly certain of her star-quality charisma. As one writer put it, "her sex appeal, together with her powers of persuasion and her ability to charm all around her, made her simply, irresistibly desirable." This was who had come to call on Mark Antony, one of the most powerful men in Rome (and so, at that time, the world). Antony was a soldier, a devotee of the wine-god Dionysus, a playboy extraordinaire - a man, in other words, who lived life in vivid technicolour.

If anyone was going to make Rome's fun-loving general pay attention, it was going to be the young queen sailing towards him dressed in gold.

But there was more to this than just sex appeal. For Antony, vying to hold onto his position of power amidst the remains of the crumbling Roman Republic, Cleopatra meant Egypt, and Egypt meant two things: grain and gold. Both were essential to fund (and feed) his battle for world domination. For Cleopatra, Antony meant Rome's backing for her precarious hold on power back home, following a decade of civil war, during which the young queen had gone into exile and returned with an army to take the throne from her brother. No meeting could be more important for either of them. It was a moment well worth a bit of theatre, not to mention a spot of role play.
