ETERNITY ISLE BIOMES

Eternity Isle is a truly fascinating place, full of ancient wonders. It's home to three additional biomes, with twelve distinct regions, but these require Mist to unlock, rather than Dreamlight. Here's what you can expect to find in each region.

ANCIENTS' LANDING

Upon arrival at Eternity Isle, you'll find yourself in Ancient's Landing – a mysterious set of ruins that appear to be very old indeed. The Docks show evidence of market activity, and are a great spot for fishing. The Marketplace is a small, enclosed area with a narrow passage to a tiny beach complete with Treadwater Table. The Overlook boasts fantastic views of the ocean, with some ancient ruins of its in the distance – perhaps the area was once used as a lookout post. The Ruins are all that remains of an ancient castle. Largely unused by nature, there's a small courtyard and a staircase leading to a balcony with a magnificent view of the surrounding landscape.

36

GLITTERING DUNES

The vast Glittering Dunes are a vast area of desert with little in the way of plant life and evidence of ancient civilisation. The Palace is a wide expanse of flat ground with the remains of some ancient sandstone archways and steps. The Bazaar is at the foot of a tall rocky outcrop to the Palace, and are left across low dunes. The Villages show signs of previous habitation – there's a dispensary partially buried in the sand, and it's home to the Chief of Villagers, too. The Oasis is a rare, lush area within the desert landscape – it's covered in grass and flowers.

WILD TANGLE

The Wild Tangle is the most remote of the Glittering Dunes. Within the Dunes are barren and arid, the Wild Tangle is lush, verdant and teeming with all sorts of life. The Greenhouse is the area of the island, with a clear entrance through the center. The Promenade is a well-lit path that leads through the Greenhouse to the beach. The Greenhouse is densely packed with trees and other plants. The Lagoon boasts an impressive waterfall and stunning views.

MULAN

Mulan is a warrior princess and the hero who saved China. She believes in honour, discipline and strength. While training with the army she learned that discipline is the foundation of all skill and that you can learn to do almost anything with practice and determination.

DEVELOPER NOTE

Working on Mulan's wardrobe was a labor of love for our team. We wanted to make sure she looked like a warrior princess, but also like a princess. We spent a lot of time getting just right.

MERMAID BEACH

True to its name, Mermaid Beach is a beautiful stretch of beach that helps her to feel at home on land as she does in the ocean.

A princess like Ariel deserves a stretch of beach that helps her to feel at home on land as she does in the ocean.

THE BASICS

Before you begin your adventure, it's a good idea to familiarise yourself with how Dreamlight Valley works – there are lots of ways to play, get creative and share the fun with friends.

HOW TO PLAY

You can play Dreamlight Valley on PC, Mac, Xbox, Nintendo Switch and PlayStation. You can also play the Arcade Edition on Apple Arcade.

Dreamlight Valley lets you choose what kind of adventure you want to have each day. You might want to focus on completing quests to level up your friendships, or you may prefer to get creative and focus on designing your Valley and decorating your house.

Friendship is important in Dreamlight Valley, so naturally there's a Multiplayer option. You'll be able to invite your friends to visit your valley – and visit theirs – once you've completed Vanellope von Schweetz's quest, Valley Visits.

And there's more – a paid expansion pack called A Rift in Time is available, opening up a whole new island of exotic biomes, rare plants and materials and even some new friends.

The invitations were delivered that very day. As their mother read the invitation aloud, Anastasia and Drizella jumped with excitement. Cinderella asked if she could go, too. "You may go," said her stepmother sternly, "if you finish all your chores and find something suitable to wear."

Cinderella ran to her room and found her mother's old dress. She could fix it up for the ball! But Cinderella's stepmother kept giving her more and more work to do around the house. Cinderella wasn't going to have time to finish her dress. When at last her chores were done, Cinderella discovered a wonderful surprise. Her animal friends had been sewing all day. Her mother's dress was now a beautiful gown!

But when Cinderella joined her stepsisters, they ripped the gown to shreds. Sobbing, Cinderella ran into the garden. Now she had no hope of going to the ball! Suddenly the garden filled with light. Cinderella's Fairy Godmother had arrived to make her dreams come true!

Eight-year-old Mousa dived underwater along the shore and scooped up a shrimp. He was eating it when he heard a string of sparkling sounds, when suddenly she came to him with two large deep eyes. His heart soared—it was Fatha, his favorite fish. He lay long, when they were both still. Mousa had known Fatha from a very young boy, holding a lead over the turtle as he swam beneath the sand and the sea. Mousa never knew how to let go, but he did. He was alone, and he was alone, the turtle never leaving the day. But as the world spun around, the turtle never moved.

Fatha moved, and Mousa followed. There beneath the waves, the water grew cold and calm—a welcome change to the heat and bustle of Montreal island. Mousa would use that day and night to follow Fatha, his favorite, Mousa thought these moments with his special friend.

Time for a break! As Mousa flattered up to the surface, a sound tumbled into his ears. "Mousa! Your mother, Sita, called her from Mousa, where are you?"

Mousa glanced through the water's surface. "Right here, Mousa!" the sound said. "Look at this! She's just here!" She pointed to the horizon. Look at these faraway clouds. What are they telling you?

Mousa trembled with the sea, studied them, for just as Sita taught her to do and just as her ancestors had for generations. Signs from Transforming a beat-up sugar mill into a place for good food and good company was a vision that had passed from his heart to hers. Naveen had helped her change that falling-apart building into Tian Palace, known for miles around. People lined up to get a taste of her daddy's famous gumbo and her mouthwatering beignets. He would have been so proud.

Tiana had been thinking a lot about her daddy, like she did every year around his birthday.

Disney Fascinating Facts

NATURE: ANIMALS

Most fish have some sort of skeleton, but a shark doesn't have any bones at all. Its whole skeleton is made of cartilage. This means sharks are very flexible and can twist themselves quickly to catch speedy prey.

Flying squirrels have flaps of skin that stretch from their front to rear paws. A flying squirrel can jump from a tall tree, then spread its legs wide to create air resistance as it falls. This force slows the squirrel down so that it glides instead of falling.

Some animals can walk on water! Lizards called basilisks can run for about 4.6 metres before sinking underwater. Birds called western grebes also run on water during take-off. A combination of speed, webbed feet, and surface tension makes this feat possible.

An animal called the pistol shrimp has a built-in blaster. This little critter has one huge claw that it can snap with incredible force. The snap makes a blast of sound and heat strong enough to stun other animals. Syndrome from The Incredibles would be proud!

There are very few native land mammals in the Pacific Islands. In Fiji, the only native land mammals are bats. But what about Pua and Heihei from Mono? Pigs and chickens were brought to the Pacific Islands thousands of years ago.

NATURE: ANIMALS

Some types of flea can jump up to 200 times the length of their body! They have a powerful springy protein that they squeeze when their legs fold, ready to jump. When they stop squeezing it, the protein creates explosive energy that makes the legs spring forward powerfully.

As well as reaching speeds of up to 96 km/h, the hummingbird is known for another fast feat. The tiniest species can flap their wings at a rate of 80 beats a second, or 4,800 times in one minute. And that's not all - their hearts can beat 1,200 times per minute too.

You might think that flamingos are pink, but those feathers are actually dyed. They eat a diet of blue-green algae and brine shrimp that contains a dye called carotenanthin, which gives their feathers their pink colour.

Many animals have natural armour. The pangolin, for instance, is covered with hard, overlapping scales, while crocodiles are covered with bony knobs. Crabs and many other creatures have exoskeletons - where they wear their skeletons on the outside to protect the soft organs inside.

Lots of animals live in the harsh tundras of Earth. These include owls, foxes, wolves and reindeer. Foxes and reindeer have thick fur that protects them from the cold. Arctic wolves have fur on their paws that give them a better grip on the icy ground. Some animals, like huskies, even help people get around! These dogs are very strong and can pull sleds for a long time.

What do you think the world's deadliest animal is? The surprising answer is the mosquito. This annoying insect kills over 700,000 people a year by spreading diseases, such as malaria and yellow fever, when they bite.

Disney Chills: Second Star to the Fright

Second Star to the Fright

were hazel, a mixture of brown and green that he liked. But basically, he looked like any ordinary twelve-year-old.

'I wish I could stay a kid forever,' he whispered to his reflection.

As he got dressed, he caught a whiff of his wardrobe and scrunched up his nose. Okay, maybe his sister did have a point about the smell. Of course, his mum had told him like a bazillion times to clean it out, but he always seemed to have better things to do, like play video games or skateboard in the park with his friends or read his pile of mystery books.

He could worry about having a clean wardrobe when he got older, couldn't he?

Barrie slammed the wardrobe door and grabbed his backpack then bounded downstairs to the kitchen. He was still half asleep, but luckily, he could navigate his house in his sleep. They'd lived there since he was born.

Before he could pour himself cereal or sit down at the table. Dad caught his eye. That pile of bills next to him somehow looked even taller than it had last night.

The Big Fright

'Did you finish your homework?' his father asked. Another terrible thing about growing up. Homework.

Every year, it got harder and took longer, too. He was one week away from finishing primary school and moving up to Year 7. The graduation ceremony was next Friday. He'd be attending New London High School in the autumn. But first, he'd have a glorious three months of summer holiday, where he didn't have to worry about anything other than being a kid and having fun.

'Uh, yeah mostly,' Barrie said, fudging. The truth was... he hadn't done any of it. He'd just got so caught up in his new book. He'd have to try to copy off Michael and John, his best friends. He just hoped they had actually done the homework and not slacked off like him.

'Well, if we had not you didn't.' Mum chimed in cheerfully, 'you'll get grounded again.' She took a sip from her giant cup of coffee.

Barrie eyed his parents over the breakfast table. They both looked... tired.

Despite their insisting that waking up early was a good thing, they both had dark circles under their eyes and chugged coffee like their lives depended on it. Even now, his mum was downing her fresh cup in a few swallows. Her coffee intake had definitely risen since the redundancy and transition to working from home and the living room had become her office. It was covered in random pieces of paper and draped with power cords for various electronic devices. Everything had changed and not for the better.

'Just wait for secondary school,' Rita said in a snarky voice, pouring a bowl of healthy cereal and adding almond milk. 'It gets a lot harder. You'll have even more homework – plus algebra.'

The way his sister pronounced algebra made it sound like a curse word. His eyes darted to her backpack, slumped by the front door. It was overflowing with thick textbooks.

The Big Fright

'Uh, I'm not even sure what that is,' Barrie said, bypassing the healthy options and pouring himself a bowl of his favourite sugary cereal with a friendly-looking cartoon pirate gracing the box. 'Fractions are bad enough.'

'It's like fractions times a million,' Rita said, aiming her milk-encrusted spoon at his face. 'Trust me, you'll hate it.'

'Rita, don't scare your little brother like that.' Dad cut her off, sipping coffee. 'Algebra is great fun.'

Rita looked horrified. 'Uh, how is algebra fun? Are you losing it? Nobody likes algebra. It's like a scientific fact. They've proven it in actual studies.'

'Right... let's see now... things we couldn't do without algebra...' Dad mused. 'It's how we got to the Moon.'

Barrie shot his father a sceptical look. He knew for a fact that parents lied to kids a lot. Like white lies. Little lies. It was almost like they didn't want kids to realise the truth about what it was really like to grow up.

Second Star to the Fright

'The Moon?' Rita said with a snort. 'Uh, that's the best you've got? Can algebra get me out of driving Barrie to school too?'

'Rita, we discussed this already.' Mum called from across the kitchen, shooting her a chastising look. 'We had an agreement, remember?'

But then she brightened and tapped the family wall calendar. 'Excited for your birthday next week, Little Guy?'

She pointed to the square for Monday. On it was a crude drawing of balloons and a birthday cake, along with the scrawled words:

Barrie's 12th birthday

The week was packed with other appointments, including his graduation ceremony on Friday. It promised to be excruciatingly boring, featuring a cameo by his annoying Aunt Wendy and his twin cousins, who were both drooling, snotty toddlers.

But then there was also the one thing that he'd been looking forward to for months. His eyes locked on the square for Tuesday and he felt a rush of excitement jolt through him.

'Yeah, how would you like to celebrate? Dad chimed in. 'I mean, besides going to the Lost Boys concert with your friends on Tuesday night and rocking out.'

Barrie cringed when his dad said rocking out. Somehow it sounded cool when his friends said that kind of stuff. But not when his father tried it.

The Lost Boys were their favourite band. His parents had gotten him a ticket as a gift for his birthday and agreed to extend his curfew since he was turning twelve and graduating from primary school. Michael and John had also convinced their parents and scored tickets to the sold-out concert. They were all going together. It was like some kind of sign – his favourite band coming to town the day after his birthday. Barrie couldn't wait.

'Let's see... oh, I know?' Dad went on, tapping at his tablet with great enthusiasm. 'What about a family trip to the maritime museum this weekend?' His father smiled at him expectantly. Barrie frowned, fiddling with his spoon. While not as bad as algebra, that didn't sound like much fun.

'Uh, what's a... maritime museum?' he asked cautiously.

'Oh, it's super exciting!' Dad said in a voice that made Barrie pretty sure that it was the exact opposite.

His father pulled up the website on his tablet, then flipped it around for Barrie to see. Images of old ships flashed across the screen, under the heading: 'The New London Maritime Museum – Where History Comes To Life!'

'It's located out by the marina,' Dad said, tapping again at the screen. 'It's a museum dedicated to naval history.'

'What's that mean?' Barrie said.

'It means boats, Goober,' Rita said snarkily. She loved showing off how much more she knew than he did.

'And not just any boats,' Dad added, flipping through the website. 'This museum specializes in pirate history.' He pointed to a ship with a black-and-white flag printed with a skull and crossbones. The name was painted across the hull in ornate script:

The Big Fright

Folly Roger

Barrie studied the image, feeling unsettled. The skull seemed to stare into his soul.

'You can even tour an old pirate ship,' Dad went on. 'Doesn't that sound amazing?'

'Uh... maybe,' Barrie said, not wanting to disappoint his dad. But what he really wanted to do was to go to the skate park with his friends, not tour some boring old boat museum.

His father was a big history buff. He loved anything tied to the past. But most of that stuff was just boring if you asked Barrie – or saw all of his B minuses on his history tests. It all happened a long time ago, so why should he care?

'Great, then I'll grab tickets,' Dad went on, oblivious to his son's total lack of interest. 'The whole family can go on Sunday. We can have some nice family time.'

Now it was Rita's turn to look stricken. 'But I

The science behind Spider-Man is very interesting. I like him, but I would definitely NOT have named myself after an arachnid. Also, that's not how I would've made those webs, but I like what he did there. It must be some type of polymer. Cool. I've met more than one spider-guy, but I'm not sure how many there are.

- HOW DID SPIDER-MAN GET HIS POWERS?
- WHERE DOES SPIDER-MAN GET HIS WEBS FROM?
- WHAT GADGETS DOES SPIDER-MAN HAVE?
- DO THE DIFFERENT SPIDER-MEN HAVE DIFFERENT POWERS?
- HOW DO DOCTOR OCTOPUSS ARMS WORK?
- CAN THE VULTURE REALLY FLY?

Captain Marvel: An Origin Story (Marvel Origins)

higher until the edge of the continent curved away from her. She headed north, flying as fast as she could. She had to find a way to stop what was happening before the ice cap collapsed completely. But first, she had to save the people on that ship.

As she reached the ship, Captain Marvel could see that it was in real trouble. It was simply too small to navigate the huge waves crashing into it. Massive chunks of the glacier kept breaking off, plunging into the ocean and sending yet more water washing over the bucking ship. It made Carol think about what would happen if the whole ice cap melted – cities all over the world would suffer a similar fate.

She could see people on the ship's deck desperately clinging to whatever they could. It was going to sink if she couldn't save it, and quickly.

'You're the strongest woman in the world,' Captain Marvel reminded herself. 'You can do this.'

Carol shot towards the ship faster than a bullet from a gun. She hovered at the ship's prow, just above the icy water, feeling it splash against her suit as she found her grip.

Then she began to lift. The effort made her muscles burn, but the ship began to rise out of the waves, saltwater streaming from the hull. As another gigantic wave burst across her back, Captain Marvel gasped. Still, she didn't let go.

Second by second she gained momentum, shoving the ship clear of the waves until she could set it down on smoother waters again. She let it go and hovered above the deck, letting the water trickle off her suit.

The people on the deck of the ship started to notice her. They looked like the crew of a research vessel – these weren't seasoned deep-sea sailors. Were they scientists? Then Carol saw the logo on their jackets. It belonged to a global oil company.

She turned to look at the disaster still happening beneath the ice, then back at the

'Hey,' she said. 'Do you know what that is? Do you know what's happening out there?'

One of the men struggled to his feet, his face pale.

'We – we didn't know,' he stammered. 'We didn't know this would happen!'

Captain Marvel landed on deck, standing before him with her hands on her hips. 'You didn't know what would happen? What did you do?'

'We found something beneath the ice,' the man said. 'It must have been there for centuries, but with climate change, the ice has now melted enough for us to detect it.'

'What is it?' Carol demanded. 'What did you find?'

'We don't know. Some sort of machine. We thought – I thought – that if we could get it out, we might be able to use it to mine the oil that's below the surface. But something activated it before we could get it out.'

'Now it's destroying the entire ice cap.'

said a woman next to him. 'If that happens, these waves are going to look like droplets in comparison with what will come next. It will destroy everything. Earth will never be the same.'

'Not if I can stop it,' said the super hero. 'Get out of here. Get the ship as far away as you can. I'll deal with this – whatever it is.'

Captain Marvel flew into the air again, speeding back towards the rupturing mass of land and ice. A shape was visible now, a dark shadow was forcing its way towards the surface from beneath the splintering ice and snow.

Something punched its way free of the ice. It was a massive metal hand. It smashed down into the snow, clutching for grip as it hauled itself free of its icy prison.

'It's a robot,' Captain Marvel said aloud. 'It's a giant metal robot! Why is it always robots?'

Sometime after midnight on a cold, clear night, the silver-and-red toy robot that Carol had just got for her fifth birthday decided to wake her up and start talking.

'Robot Supreme to Carol Squirt Danvers,' it said, in a low voice that sounded a lot like her big brother Stevie. 'Director from Robot Control says: Wake up! You're missing all the fun!'

Carol blinked her bleary eyes and stared at the robot. It had snuck under the duvet she had pulled up over her head.

'What?' she asked.

'Not "what!"; the robot corrected her primly. 'Sorry!'

Carol blinked again. 'Sorry, what?' 'Never mind,' said Stevie in a hushed voice, appearing from the side of the bed and dropping the robot on her pillow. 'Just wake up!'

Carol Danvers' childhood home was in a quiet suburb of Boston, where she lived with her mom Marie, her dad Joe and her two stepbrothers, Stevie and Joe Junior. Though her brothers were a few years older than her, they never minded their little sister hanging around with them. Like now, for instance, when Stevie had snuck into her room to wake her up to play, when she really should have been fast asleep.

'What's happening?' Carol mumbled, still sleepy.

'Sh,' Stevie whispered. 'Come on, Squirt, we're going on an adventure.'

To five-year-old Carol, the idea of an adventure in the middle of the night was both exciting and scary. She sat up and rubbed her eyes. 'An adventure? Where? Are

Mom and Dad coming?'

'Nope, it's just us and Joe. You'd better hurry, or you'll miss it. Put on the warmest sweater and socks you've got.'

'Are we going very far?' Carol asked.

'Yes,' Stevie said. 'We're going into space. Hurry up!'

Carol rushed to do as her brother said and then followed him out of her room and down the hallway, treading on tiptoe past their parents' bedroom.

She held her breath as they crept down the stairs, avoiding the one that always creaked. Once they were downstairs, she looked around for her other brother.

'Where's Joe?'

'He's already started the adventure,' Stevie told her. 'We're late!'

Stevie took Carol's coat from the hook in the hallway and made her put it on, as he quietly opened the door. Then they went out into the garden. At first Carol couldn't see anything because it was so dark.

'Can't we use a flashlight?' she asked.

'No!' Stevie told her. 'There need to be as few lights as possible or your eyes won't adjust. Come on.'

He led Carol further into the garden.

'Hey, Squirt,' said a voice near Carol's left foot. 'You made it, then.'

It was her brother Joe. He was lying on his back on the grass, zipped inside a sleeping bag. There were two other sleeping bags laid out beside him.

'Quick, get in,' Stevie told her, as he sat down and began to get into his own bag.

Carol did as she was told. 'I thought you said we were going into space?' she asked, disappointed that they hadn't gone any further than their own backyard. She'd imagined a beautiful silver rocket carrying them up into the night sky.

'We are,' Stevie told her. 'Lie back and look at the stars.'

She did. Carol had never really paid attention to the stars properly before. The
