INTRODUCTION

Imagine a world where all around us are people with bionic limbs, machines attached to their heads and cameras for eyes. This same world has cyborgs who can hear colours and communicate via their teeth, and even people who use robotic skeletons to walk elsewhere. In this world, children have to hear with external ears, and people have without legs can walk using ones made of metal and carbon fibre. Some people use chips inside their bodies to get into their offices, or to pay for their coffees on their way into work. This world is full of incredible people who are using technology to do amazing things. But the most amazing part of all is that this world is the one we already live in.

Technology has changed all of our lives, and not just with the smartphones or tablets that we use. For many people, particularly those with disabilities, recent technological advances have created the means of the greatly imaginable, and reached a place of possibility. The idea of a bionic limb, for example, is not a new one, and it's right in front of our noses. Far from a scene from a science fiction film, the future is far away from us. This book explores the world of bionics and the amazing things that bionics can do. It includes some of the most remarkable bionics that get us there. We will also look at the future of bionics, and the amazing things that we can expect to see in the future. We will also look at the future of bionics, and the amazing things that we can expect to see in the future. We will also look at the future of bionics, and the amazing things that we can expect to see in the future.

THE FIRST PROSTHESES

For as long as humans have been around, we have been losing limbs, or even losing them. Because of an injury or congenital impairment (a condition that is present from birth), people have been trying to replace missing arms, legs, fingers and toes for thousands of years. Early prostheses were made of wood, but over time, they got their inventors did not have the technology needed to provide better functionality and comfort. So far, some of these early prostheses closely resemble those that exist today.

The earliest known example of a prosthesis (an artificial body part) belonged to an Egyptian mummyman over 2,000 years ago. This wooden prosthesis replaced the leg on his right foot, and even had a ridge in the shape of a nail carved into it to make it appear more realistic. It would have been strapped onto his foot with string, and sometimes because it would have greatly altered his balance.

Count Götz von Berlichingen Perhaps the most famous example of an early prosthesis is that belonging to the German knight Count Götz von Berlichingen, who lost his hand during battle in the early 1500s. Count Götz asked local craftsmen to make an iron hand with digits, fingers and thumb that could lock into place, so he could hold a horse's reins or a weapon. This hand was made of iron and leather, and some people believe it inspired the phrase, 'He rode with an iron fist'.

WHAT IS BIONIC?

Bionics refers to the transfer of technology between artificial objects and living organisms. The word 'bionics' comes from a combination of the Greek words for 'bio' (life) and 'nics' (mechanics). It was coined by American engineer and science fiction writer Jack E. Stone in the 1960s. Bionics is the science of understanding how nature's designs can be used to create new technologies. The transfer of ideas from biology to technology is called 'bionics'. Bionics is a field of study that is growing rapidly, and it is expected to be one of the most important fields of study in the future. BIONIC LIMBS AND IMPLANTABLE DEVICES

A prosthesis can be internal or external to the body. The ways in which people can replace parts of their body can largely be broken down into two groups: bionic limbs and implantable devices.

'Implantable devices' is a broad term describing anything that is surgically implanted inside the body. Because surgery is required to gain access, these devices cannot easily be removed, and are typically designed to stay inside the body forever. Examples of these include pacemakers and cochlear implants.

Bionic limbs are artificial body parts, which are intended to replace the function of a human body part, such as an arm or a leg. These are attached to the body, usually via a belt, strap or socket, and can be easily taken on and off by their wearer.

If either a bionic limb or an implant has batteries that need to be charged, they are called 'active'. Those that do not are called 'passive'. Some implants, such as cochlear implants, need batteries. These sit outside the body and attach to the implant via a wire, so the user does not need surgery every time the battery runs out (see pages 28–29).

RICH AND POOR

THE HISTORY OF WEALTH

Wealth is the difference in wealth between the richest and the poorest. It has been around since the beginning of time. In the early days, wealth was measured in terms of land and livestock. As time went on, it became more complex, including money, property, and even knowledge.

WEALTH CONCENTRATION

One of the biggest reasons for inequality is the way that wealth tends to get concentrated in the hands of a few. This is often due to the fact that those who have more wealth are able to invest it more effectively than those who do not.

CHARLES OF INEQUALITY

There are many reasons for wealth inequality. Some people have more skills or resources than others. Some people are born into wealth, while others are born into poverty. There are also many social and economic factors that contribute to inequality.

WHAT'S WRONG WITH WEALTH INEQUALITY?

When a small number of people own most of the wealth in a country, it can lead to many problems. For example, it can lead to a lack of social mobility, where people are stuck in the same economic position for generations.

GOLDEN YEARS

AN INTERNATIONAL SYSTEM

In the 1920s, the gold standard was formally adopted by many countries. This meant that the value of a country's currency was linked to the amount of gold it held. This system helped to stabilize the global economy.

THE COST OF WAR

World War I had a massive impact on the global economy. It led to a huge increase in government spending and a massive loss of life and property. This led to a period of economic hardship in the years following the war.

THE HOODLUMS

The 1920s were also a time of crime and corruption. Prohibition led to the rise of organized crime, and there were many cases of political corruption.

FROM COUNTERFEIT COINS TO FALSE NOTES

ALVES dos REIS

Alves dos Reis was a Portuguese man who became a master counterfeiter. He was known for his ability to create fake banknotes that were indistinguishable from the real ones.

THE FIRST COUNTERFEITS

Counterfeiting has been around since the beginning of time. In the early days, it was often done by hand, using simple tools and materials.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

At regular markets people buy and sell things like food and clothing. At financial markets, people trade money-related assets. These include stocks and bonds.

STOCKS are shares in a company that the company sells to raise capital. Shareholders are paid dividends (regular sums paid out of the company's profits). Bonds are certificates issued by a government or corporation, promising to repay borrowed money at a fixed rate of interest. Financial markets can be physical places, like the New York Stock Exchange, or they can take place online.

THE FIRST BONDS

In the twelfth century, the government of Venice came up with a new way of raising money to fight a war. It offered its citizens certificates, known as prestiti, in exchange for a loan, promising to pay them back by a certain time, plus 5 per cent interest. These were the first government bonds.

THE FIRST STOCKS

Founded in 1602, the Dutch East India Company was the first company to sell shares to the public. The money it raised from this funded its voyages to the East Indies, and it paid its shareholders out of the profits from its trade in enslaved people and spices. The shares were traded in the Amsterdam Stock Exchange, also established that year.

THE DAILY NEWS

OCTOBER 1929 NEW YORK CITY

THE WALL STREET CRASH

FINANCIAL MARKETS CAN BE VOLATILE. A RUMOUR OR A MINOR PIECE OF ECONOMIC NEWS CAN CAUSE BIG SWINGS IN PRICES. THE DESIRE TO MAKE MONEY OR AVOID LOSING IT IS A POWERFUL ONE, AND A HERD INSTINCT CAN SOMETIMES TAKE OVER WITH PEOPLE STAMPEDING TO BUY OR SELL. THE MOST SPECTACULAR EXAMPLE OF THIS WAS THE WALL STREET CRASH OF 1929.

THE ROARING TWENTIES

The 1920s was boom time in the United States. There was a spirit of optimism in the country and it became fashionable to play the stock market. Share prices soon rocketed to a point where they represented a value far greater than the total worth of their companies' assets. This was now a mania – a period when everyone, from wealthy financiers to common investors, lost touch with reality and seemed to believe that prices could keep rising forever.

AFTER EFFECTS

As a result of the crash, businesses were bankrupted, banks closed, millions lost their jobs and the world plunged into a deep and lasting economic depression. This had a big political impact. In Europe, extreme right-wing parties exploited the misery of mass unemployment, blaming 'foreigners' such as Jews. Germany's Nazi Party rose to power in 1933. The consequences for the world would be devastating.

DISASTER

The crash occurred at the end of October 1929, during three calamitous days of trading at the New York Stock Exchange on Wall Street, when huge numbers of people decided collectively it was time to sell. With so many sellers, there were few buyers, and share prices plummeted. In those three days, billions of dollars were wiped off the value of American companies. And over the following years the market kept on falling. By 1932, stocks had lost nearly 90 per cent of their pre-crash value.

Ancient Love Stories

THE SACRED BAND OF THEBES

This was the final meeting place of the Sacred Band of Thebes, one of the most remarkable and most loyal armies that had ever lived. A bold experiment in an age torn apart by warring wars and between alliances, who had been fighting for the freedom of the Greeks. As every man part of soldiers, but of a hundred and fifty such boys.

Bound together by love loyalty to each other, the crack team of warriors was founded in Thebes in 378 BC by an extraordinary visionary by the name of Pausanias. It began as a resistance corps against the looming military power of Sparta (renowned the world over for its famously trained soldiers) across the mountain to the south. These were chaste, Spartan-style, gladiators, playing blood across the pages of history, and well suited to the birth of a new kind of army.

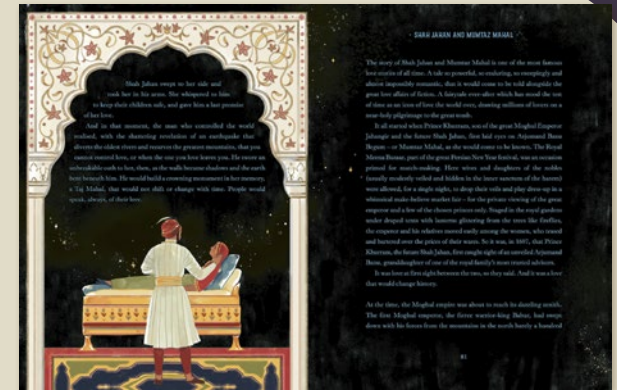

HADES AND ANTINOUS

These parts first crossed across years earlier, when Hades - ruler of the Roman world and self-proclaimed prince of peace - took a summer jaunt across the Roman province of Bithynia, in northern Turkey, where Antinous had his home. The emperor, busy with the day job, probably did not spot Antinous among the crowds of adoring subjects and eager petitioners. But one of his women did - and, no doubt, with an eye to the emperor's taste, spent a night in the meeting in the beautiful, beach-looked young man. Antinous was duly offered a dream career: admission to the exclusive imperial circle along with a tuition package to the emperor's personal academy in Rome. To be his boy from a distant village on the fringes of the Roman empire, this must have seemed an offer too good to be true - a one-way ticket to live among the stars. But, it was a good mistake if anything would have known. By invitation to the sun and you might get burned.

Antinous' due to the top was not even by Roman standards, where there were plenty of high classes who made it to the big time. But among the other staff of the imperial household, Antinous - famously good-looking, smart, with a magnetic personality and a sensitive taste for Hades' favored boys - quickly caught the emperor's eye. Hades was instantly besotted, and Antinous became his paragon. In the summer of 130 AD, at the age of seventeen, Antinous was personally selected to accompany Hades on a tour of Greece (Hades was a notorious Greek enthusiast, then said: Asia Minor and, finally, Egypt).

It was clear to everyone that Hades was something to be Antinous out of his sight - and together, they took part in many extraordinary experiences on their round-the-world trip. A night-long dip into mystical waters at the Thracian Mountains of Ganga. A brief boat ride in the highlands of Asia Minor. A quest - about the searching out of Hades' much-loved Greek mythology books - to take down a mountain lion that had been terrorizing the people of Licia. On all these adventures, the new obsession with each other grew steadily.

MARK ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA

Mark Antony was to his side and Cleopatra was to his side, and they were to be together for the rest of their lives. It was a love story that would be told for centuries, and it was a love story that would be told for centuries.

The story of Mark Antony and Cleopatra is one of the most famous love stories of all time. A tale so powerful, so romantic, so tragically and utterly irresistible, that it would come to be told throughout the great love affairs of history. A love story that would be told for centuries, and it was a love story that would be told for centuries.

It all started when Cleopatra, the queen of the great kingdom of Egypt, met the Roman general Mark Antony. They had met in 41 BC, when Antony was on his way to Rome to fight the civil war. Cleopatra was then a young woman, and she was looking for a man who would be able to help her to rule Egypt. Antony was a man who was known for his love of women, and he was a man who was known for his love of power. When they met, they were both looking for a man who would be able to help them to rule their respective kingdoms.

At the time, the Egyptian empire was down to much its dwindling wealth. The last Ptolemaic emperor, the little, weakling Ptolemy, had made a deal with his Roman ally, the emperor, to let him have a hundred thousand pounds of gold in exchange for the throne. But the emperor had been so greedy that he had taken all the gold, and the emperor had been so greedy that he had taken all the gold.

wafted by attendants dressed as cupids and sea-nymphs: Cleopatra. Ruler of Egypt. Goddess of the Nile. Queen of one of the wealthiest countries in the world. Beautiful, certainly, at just twenty eight, but more than anything, utterly, alluringly certain of her star-quality charisma. As one writer put it, "her sex appeal, together with her powers of persuasion and her ability to charm all around her, made her simply, irresistibly desirable." This was who had come to call on Mark Antony, one of the most powerful men in Rome (and so, at that time, the world). Antony was a soldier, a devotee of the wine-god Dionysus, a playboy extraordinaire - a man, in other words, who lived life in vivid technicolour.

If anyone was going to make Rome's fun-loving general pay attention, it was going to be the young queen sailing towards him dressed in gold.

But there was more to this than just sex appeal. For Antony, vying to hold onto his position of power amidst the remains of the crumbling Roman Republic, Cleopatra meant Egypt, and Egypt meant two things: grain and gold. Both were essential to fund (and feed) his battle for world domination. For Cleopatra, Antony meant Rome's backing for her precarious hold on power back home, following a decade of civil war, during which the young queen had gone into exile and returned with an army to take the throne from her brother. No meeting could be more important for either of them. It was a moment well worth a bit of theatre, not to mention a spot of role play.

THE FIRST RAILWAYS

It is strange to think that they have only been around as we know them for about two hundred years.

Pushing his way on to influence many other engineers. The first public railway to use steam locomotives, the Stockton and Darlington Railway in England, opened in 1825. It was designed by George Stephenson, who went on to be known as the 'Father of Railways' for his influential role in so many early railways.

THE GAUGE

One of the most significant decisions made on the gauge for British railways. The gauge is the distance between the rails and is measured from the inside edge of one rail to the other. By using the same gauge on different railways, Stephenson could ensure that the trains were compatible when they connected. He decided on a gauge of 7'6" (91.4cm), which became known as the 'standard gauge'. Today, more than half of the world's railways use this gauge.

The widest gauge was not without its rivals. In 1825, Isambard Kingdom Brunel, engineer of the British Great Western Railway, decided on a much wider gauge when he designed the line between London and Bristol, which opened in 1826. His wide tracks, set at a width of 7.5 ft (2.3 m), allowed for more stability at speed, and bigger vehicles which could carry greater loads. Unfortunately for Brunel, his ideas arrived too late to compete, and by 1850 all the tracks had been converted to the narrower gauge of 4 ft 8½ in. (1.43 m).

STEAM LOCOMOTIVES

Once the possibility of steam-powered engines had been realized, a whole host of locomotives were tried and tested around the world. Some proved too heavy, others too unreliable and some were too dangerous, but the arrival of one revolutionary design changed the course of history. Rocket, designed by engineer Robert Stephenson (George Stephenson's son - see page 8) was to provide the principal design for the vast majority of steam locomotives that follow.

Water flows the fire process through the boiler via smaller tubes. The heat the water to boiling point, raising the steam pressure.

As the pressure builds, the steam is directed to the expansion. These are controlled by valves, which act like a gasline in a car. The steam-pressure does not pile up inside the expansion, sending the wheels on a rail which connects to them.

A major part of Bishop's revolutionary design was the boiler. Multiple tubes ran through it from the top, which enlarged the surface area and prevented the water inside from boiling. A filter pipe was used to send steam from the cylinders into the chimney, helping keep the fire hot and clean along the tubes. With enough heat, steam power proved to be more efficient. Bishop's early boiler and steam pipes, like Bishop's later, far surpassed those of the other inventors.

ELECTRIC LOCOMOTIVES

The first electric train was tested as far back as 1837. Unlike steam trains, electric locomotives do not carry fuel on-board. Instead, they are powered by electricity which can be supplied from overhead lines, a third rail or in storage such as batteries. Because electric trains can be powered by renewable energy sources, they are considered less polluting than steam or diesel trains.

The first electric passenger train was presented by Werner von Siemens at an exhibition in Berlin in 1879. Consisting of a small locomotive and three cars, it reached a speed of just 13km/h.

The ETR 200 is a record-breaking electric passenger train. It is widely considered one of the first ever high-speed trains and was put into service in 1936. In 1939, it broke the speed record for trains by reaching just over 201km/h.

The ICE (InterCity Express) is one of Germany's most successful electric trains. The third generation ICE 3, can reach speeds of 300km/h. Since 2018, it has run on entirely renewable energy sources.

DIESEL LOCOMOTIVES

In a diesel locomotive, the power comes from an engine that burns diesel oil. While a steam locomotive needed two people to crew it and hours to attain the right steam pressure, a diesel locomotive could simply be switched on and driven away, making them much easier and much cheaper to run. Rudolf Diesel patented his first diesel engine in 1898, but it wasn't until around 1912 that they were first used in a locomotive.

The famous DRG Class SVT 877 Hamburg Flyer, often referred to as the 'Flying Hamburger', was first put into service in 1933. Its smooth, rounded shape was influenced by Zeppelin airships allowing for minimal air resistance.

The De10c, built in 1956, was considered the most powerful diesel locomotive in the world at that time.

The Intercity 125 is one of the most successful diesel trains of all time. So named because it was designed to cruise at 125 mph (about 201 km/h) when in service, it also holds the all-time speed record for diesel trains of 238 km/h, which it reached in 1987.

- RAILWAYS OF THE WORLD - THE FFESTINIOG RAILWAY

The Fløistings railway in North Wales is a marvel of 19th century engineering. It was built to transport slate for roof tiles from the quarries around the town of Ffestiofion, high up in the mountains of Snowdonia, down to the harbour at Porthmadog. It opened in 1836 using a narrow gauge of 5'7" to match the wagons already in use in the quarries.

By the 1950s, the railway was generating so much work coping with the fact the horses couldn't keep up. There was also increasing interest for a passenger service, which meant the railway had to be reworked. The solution was for several short steam engines to be built, which were among the first narrow gauge locomotives in the world. By 1960, there were six working, the first had more than 100 tonnes to cope with the demand.

1. Early, a revolutionary idea was presented to the railway to make new types. Engineer Robert Farnie had patented the "Double Farnie," an ingenious double-ended locomotive design. This was in effect two locomotives connected back to back and running over just 2 bogies, which saved the expense of having two engines but doubled the power output. The first of these was called the "Director," and over the next 17 years another five Double Farnies were built for the railway. They were so successful that Robert Farnie allowed the railway to use his patent for free forever, something it couldn't do in its first day.

Try this breathing exercise to help you relax:

STEP 1

Make sure you are sitting comfortably in a quiet and safe place. When you feel ready, close your eyes. Notice your breathing. Think about how it feels breathing in and breathing out. Try to breathe in through your nose and out through your mouth.

STEP 2

Place your hand on your tummy and focus on the feeling of your stomach rising and falling with each breath. When you breathe in, quietly say 'in' to yourself, and when you breathe out, quietly say 'out' to yourself.

STEP 3

Concentrate on nothing but your breathing and try to let go of any other thoughts you may have.

When you've had lots of practice at the breathing exercise, see if you can think about a happy memory at the same time. This way, your happy memory will take up all the space in your brain, and there won't be any room for the worries.

• THE WHITE BEAR KING •

But the first time, the bear roared! With a bellowing roar, the powerful creature got his claws on her back. And then, but despite of his best efforts, he was unable to hold her. He roared again and again. But she was not afraid. She only looked at him with a calm, steady gaze.

The prince held on to her back. But the bear's powerful muscles were too strong for the weak boy. He slipped off her back. He was unable to hold her. He was unable to hold her. He was unable to hold her.

"You are the one," the bear said. "You are the one who is not afraid of me. You are the one who is not afraid of me. You are the one who is not afraid of me."

They kept through the snow-covered mountains. The prince followed with delight. They did not stop and did not rest. They climbed the hills, and at last they came to the mountain. They kept through the snow-covered mountains.

Being from the black forest, there was a place of refuge. It was a small cave. The prince went in, and the bear went in. They went in. They went in. They went in.

When it was night, the bear roared. But, in the darkness, when the prince looked out to look for his, the bear roared. But, in the darkness, when the prince looked out to look for his, the bear roared.

Within the cave, the prince and the bear had a child. But no matter how it was, the bear was not a bear. The prince did not see the bear again. They kept through the snow-covered mountains.

TANUKI'S GOLD

A folk tale from Japan

The 'tanuki' is a member of the dog family that lives wild in the forests of Japan. Like its cousin the fox, the tanuki is small and agile, with a pointed snout and short legs, but its silky fur is striped, like a badger or a raccoon. The tanuki is famed in legends of old Japan as a magical creature – one favourite tale tells of a shape-shifting tanuki who could change into a kettle, and perform amazing acrobatics, bringing great good luck. This tale celebrates the way that when winter weather keeps us indoors, we feel especially grateful for the company of dear friends.

'Mukashi, mukashi' – very, very long ago, an old priest lived alone. He spent his days in prayer and meditation. He never needed to bother with earthly things for the local people brought him clothes and food, and patched his roof in the winter.

One winter's evening, the priest was deep in prayer. He knelt before the statue of the Buddha. He struck his bell and listened to the sound resound until it stilled to silence.

"Nyawell!" What was that? From outside came a pitiful sound. The priest opened the door, and there, shivering in the cold, was a tanuki.

• TANUKI'S GOLD •

"Your holiness!" implored the creature. "Please, may I come in and warm myself by your fire? It's bitterly cold."

The priest's eyes opened wide in surprise. He knew that tanuki hibernate in winter. "Why aren't you in your burrow?" he asked.

"In winters past, the freezing frost and mountain snow were nothing to me. But now I grow old; I feel the cold in my bones. Please, let me in."

"Of course, of course!" said the kind-hearted priest, full of compassion.

The tanuki lay thawing by the fire, eyes closed in exhaustion, wet fur steaming gently. The priest continued his prayers.

The tanuki slept by the sunken hearth all night, and in the morning, he puddled away. The next night, the tanuki returned. And the next, and the next. He brought with him fallen sticks and dead leaves for the fire, and the old priest grew fond of the sight of him, sleeping by the hearth. The white fluff of his tummy rose and fell with the gentle rhythm of his snores.

The priest noticed that when he gazed upon the tanuki, asleep in such deep peace, he felt peace in his own body, too. His breathing slowed. His gaze softened. He stroked the creature's silky fur. Sometimes, the priest sat and sipped a bowl of green tea, and the tanuki curled beside him. Its warm weight was comfortable – it made him feel content.

When winter was over, and white snow gave way to pink blossom, the tanuki came to the hut no more.

But when winter came around again, the tanuki always returned, and the old priest greeted his old friend with a glad heart.

The Incident at Camp UFO

"Y-you realise what's happening now right?!" puffed Pawan, struggling to keep up with the others. "A SUPERHERO ORIGIN STORY! Space rock falls from the sky, local kids find space rock, space rock makes them FLY or TURN STRETCHY or give them the power to make people EXPLODE or something!"

"Was it definitely a space rock?" asked Val. "Whatsit called? An asteroid. Maybe it was a satellite. Or a part of a PLANE! I heard once that an aeroplane's toilet chute opened and the stuff inside fell out of the sky, and because it's SO cold up there, it FROZE and hit a man and everyone knew that he'd been squashed by a massive frozen ball of POO!"

"Definitely not poo," said Frankie, who had made it to the shore first. The others arrived and stared out at the emanating water. "Poo doesn't glow."

"Woah" said Val, astutely.

"I guess we should report this to, uh, whoever you report asteroids to?" Frankie posited.

"Um, sorry, I think you mean meteorite," said Xinyi, apologetically. "Asteroids are when they are in space. When they fall they are a meteor, and when it lands it's a... meteorite..." Xinyi frowned. WHY did I have to say that for? Now they'll think I'm a COMPLETE dweeb...

Frankie turned to her and smiled. "Thanks, Xinyi. It's probably best we know exactly what it is when we tell—"

"Or," interrupted Val, "we DON'T tell anyone and fish it out ourselves!" The gang looked down at the glow once more.

Pawan nodded slowly. "Yeah. I mean, do you KNOW how much meteorites go for online?" He said, biting his lip. "Like, mucho gold coins. Plus, still hoping for superpowers here..."

"Yeah! Come on Frank-le-plank," beamed Val. "I wanna make people explode!"

Frankie sighed. She saw what this was. Just because she was older – just because she wasn't suggesting stupid things like FISHING FOR (potentially) MAGIC SPACE ROCKS – they were making her be the mum. The sensible one. The leader. Frankie took a deep breath. Not today. Not this entire summer, actually. She had decided in the car that this summer, she wasn't going to be in charge of ANYTHING. Especially not Val.

"Yeah, okay. Let's get the meteorite out of the lake," the new, relaxed go-with-the-flow Frankie replied. "So... how are we going to do that?"

How COULD the gang fish the meteorite out the lake? When you think you've got it, turn to the next page - or check the answer at the back!

Hint: Try skipping back a few pages and see if there's any helpful lake-related gear!
